Last leg of scheduled non-stop jet flight from Tokyo to San Francisco was taken in rubber liferaft for 96 passengers and 11 crew members of Japan Air Lines DC 8 which crashed in shallow water of San Francisco Bay Friday morning. Smooth landing, three miles short of runway, resulted in no injuries and one man got feet wet. See story, picture, Page 37.—(AP)

Fast Relief Sought By Erring Druggist

ITZHOE, West Germany (AP) — A local pharmacist was ordered by a court here Friday to pay half the upkeep of a recently born child for 18 years because he wrongly handed the mother a stomach remedy instead of the prescribed oral contraceptive.

The pharmacist has appealed.

Smiling Portrait Often Conceals Growing Ills

The four of them make up the type of family you might expect to see on a poster depicting a happy Christmas. The parents appear reasonably handsome and healthy. They are in their late 20s.

The children are four and two years of age and could very easily win you over with their ways. However, you can forget the poster. And as far as the young father is concerned, you can forget the happy Christmas.

Social workers say the father has an emotional problem. He can't seem to cope with many of life's demands. Over the past few years he has found it increasingly difficult to hold a job. As a result, the debts continue to pile up.

"It has reached the point where something like Christmas becomes an insurmountable obstacle to this man," a social worker said.

This, then, is a family with hidden scars for whom Christmas holds little hope. There are many more of them.

For many the word Christmas brings bitter thoughts. But where the children are concerned there is nearly always hope. And when that hope is not fulfilled there is disappointment. For children do not always understand.

Christmas Day can be made just a little bit more enjoyable for some of these unfortunate people by the Colonist 500 Fund.

By Friday contributions totalled $2,512 — still far short of last year's record total of more than $17,000.

The money is distributed to 500 Greater Victoria families selected by the Christmas Bureau.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2611 Douglas. Downtown shoppers can take contributions to Avis-Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas.

PARIS — Devaluation of the French franc appeared imminent Friday night after the leading industrial countries of the non-communist world agreed to give France a huge loan and Britain imposed stiff extra taxes and import curbs to meet the world monetary crisis.

Accused Carries Day

CHICAGO (Reuters)—Eddie Louis, accused of trespassing, took a dive into the cold, filthy waters of the Chicago River Friday instead of appearing in court. He emerged a hero.

The 32-year-old window cleaner was on his way to court when he spotted Hilario Santiago, 31, in the river. Shedding his shoes and jacket, Louis plunged in and held up the drowning man until a fire department rescue squad arrived.

Louis eventually got to court in borrowed clothing to hear Judge Maurice Lee say: "We need more people like you."

Louis, arrested after leaving the property of a car company where a theft occurred two weeks ago, was promptly granted an adjournment of his case until Jan. 15.

A communiqué at the end of a three-day conference in Bonn, West Germany, of finance ministers and central bankers said the "Group of 10" countries—which include Canada—will extend to France a credit of $2,000,000,000.

It said they also decided on other measures to restore international financial stability.

NEW SQUEEZE

Britain quickly announced a massive new squeeze to cut consumer spending and slash imports in an effort to ward off international attacks on the pound.

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, said there is no question of devaluing the pound. The West German mark will not be revalued upwards despite pressure on the Bonn government during the conference made tax changes to re-align imports and exports and out its trade surplus, and moved to halt the inflow of speculative money.

EMERGENCY MEETING

President de Gaulle called an emergency session of the French cabinet for today for a final decision on the franc.

Reuters news agency quoted informed sources in Paris as saying France had offered to devalue the franc.

The sources were reported as saying an offer for a devaluation of less than 10 per cent was made at the Bonn conference by Finance Minister Francois-Xavier Ortoli as part of an international operation to avert world monetary chaos.

NOT ENOUGH

Financial opinion generally was that the new credits to France would not be enough by themselves to save the franc which was under heavy speculative pressure before exchange markets were ordered closed earlier this week. There was some criticism of the failure to upgrade the West German mark against weaker currencies.

The need for some change of parity to restore confidence was outlined on Page 3

Montreal Bomb Danger

Shoppers Shooed to Safety

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of shoppers, estimated at more than 4,000, were evacuated from the downtown T. Eaton Co. department store just before supper hour Friday night following telephone bomb threats.

Police said four sticks of dynamite were found in the main floor jewelry department, and the search was being enlarged to include any suspicious packages in the store.

The downtown store was closed Friday night but was to open again today. Eaton's suburban stores in Pointe Claire and Ville d'Anjou and a warehouse store stayed open Friday night.

TWO HURT

Early in the day a bomb exploded in a basement locker provided for shoppers in the same store. It caused about $2,000 in damages and injured two cleaning workers.

Store executives decided to evacuate shoppers and allow police to make a thorough check of the premises in response to

● No letup in student unrest. Page 18.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Strand, acting president of Simon Fraser University, Friday refused to negotiate a settlement with militant students who have occupied SFU's administration building since Wednesday night.

Dr. Strand told a rally of about 2,000 students in the SFU mall that an impasse exists between the administration and a group of about 150 students, for the most part members of the radical Students for a Democratic University.

He said the group wants to negotiate with the university on four demands: reform of admissions practices, interchange of credits among universities, opening of administration files to students and more money for higher education.

NOT NEGOTIABLE

"This is not negotiable," Dr. Strand told the students.

The situation remained stale-mated Friday afternoon. The students vowed they would retain possession of the administration building until their demands are met.

Later in the day, activist leaders held a rally of their own, attended by about 300 students. They issued a statement saying they're ready and willing to bargain at any time with the administration or senate on the four demands.

SEVERAL HOURS

Dr. Strand spent the night and several hours early Friday morning negotiating with the students in the building.

He said he felt nothing was accomplished, but both sides emerged with a better understanding of each other's positions.

"I consider the issue of admissions very important," said the acting president. "I consider the occupation of the building an illegitimate means."

NO ACTION

In Victoria, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the provincial government does not plan to take any action against the students inside the building at this time.

"The matter is being handled by the university itself for the moment," said Mr. Peterson. So far, there has been no suggestion that police might be used to clear the administration building.

Classes for the 5,000 SFU students have continued on a more-or-less regular basis.

Pact Near

Quebec Liquor To Flow

MONTREAL (CP)—Raymond Parent, chief negotiator for 3,000 Quebec Liquor Board employees on strike since June 26, said Friday night liquor stores in the province may open "sometime Monday morning."

Parent, general secretary of the Confederation of National Trade Unions who bargains on behalf of the liquor board employees, said the end of the strike could come Sunday when workers will be asked to ratify proposed wage agreements giving store employees and warehouse workers average weekly increases of $22 and $26 respectively.

$85 AVERAGE

Prior to the strike, store employees earned an average of $83 weekly and warehouse workers earned an average $80 weekly.

"Under this agreement, the original government offer of a 15-per-cent increase would become more like 26 or 27 per cent," Parent said.

Dark Day in Dallas Indelibly Stamped

YESTERDAY, of course, was the anniversary of the dark day in Dallas five years ago and that infamous assassination has developed a whole new cult of remembrance addicts, the trivia hounds.

There are no membership dues, just the ability to recall, in rather minute detail, exactly what you were doing at the precise moment of an historical happening like the J.F.K. murder.

I was sleeping rather late in Vancouver's Sands Hotel Nov. 22, 1962. I was covering the Western Conference football final between the B.C. Lions and the Saskatchewan Roughriders and there was no good reason why I shouldn't sleep in. However, a wide awake hotel telephone operator decided the world-shaking happening should not go unnoticed by any guest and she methodically rang every room in a manner reminiscent of the town crier. I thanked her, turned on the TV set and watched the drama unfold.

THAT AFTERNOON I reported to the bar of the Vancouver Press Club and, along with many notable writers and politicians, glued myself to the terrible happenings and I'm sure those happenings were indelibly inscribed on every mind.

But what were you doing on other notable dates? Like Sept. 3, 1939 — the Sunday that war broke out? I remember devouring the extras turned out by Winnipeg newspapers.

WHAT ABOUT Pearl Harbor day, Dec. 7, 1941? That was also a Sunday and I got my first news of it from a breathless Sunday School mate. That night, after much sleepless thinking, I managed to get a U.S. radio station on which the great H. V. Kaltenborn was describing the events in the inimitable way he made famous.

On Thursday, April 12, 1945, I was swinging my way over the side of HMCS Drummondville, a minesweeper tied up in Halifax, when the loudspeaker blared the news that Franklin Delano Roosevelt had died.

MOVE ON to May 8, 1945 — a Tuesday and the end of the war in Europe. VE Day and I spent most of it steaming into St. John's, Nfld. That rugged island port was alive with merry-makers that night, but there was none of the trouble that befell Halifax.

Finally, the really big day

— Tuesday, Aug. 14, 1945. The day the Japanese threw in the sponge and the day that easily ranks as the most memorable in my life. I had just returned to Winnipeg on leave that morning. I guess it was the same in every city in North America that night. The streets were jammed with happy thousands finally freed from the ravages and fear of the worst war in history.

Now for all the fellas in the audience, can you remember precisely what you did the night before your wedding? I'll bet not too many can.

BY labelling the spiritualists a bunch of nuts, I in no way meant to impugn any individual. I used the term to describe my thoughts about the basic concept of spiritualism. As for any harm that can come from seances, etc., a doctor called me after the article appeared and told me he has had more trouble than enough straightening out people's minds that have been muddled through such sessions.

NOW if you'll excuse me, I must go pack my white steamer, cowboy boots and all the other Western paraphernalia necessary to make a trip to Toronto with the Calgary Stampeters and their ebullient supporters. Of Hogtown may never be the same again!

Oxygen Supply in Coronary Compensation, Not Cure

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My aunt was in hospital for heart failure but has recovered. During her six-week stay at the hospital she was given oxygen almost daily, often twice a day.

If oxygen is so helpful, I am curious as to why occasional use of oxygen wouldn't be beneficial and perhaps avoid any serious heart attacks. Does oxygen dry out the tissues if used too often?

F.B.

Heart failure, as I've explained before, doesn't mean that the heart stops; it means only that the heart is not strong enough to support fully the demands being made upon it.

In a word, the heart is not pumping as generous a supply of blood as should be the case. One important task of the circulation is to distribute fresh oxygen throughout the body.

Lower blood supply — lowered supply of oxygen. The result is that the patient feels "short of breath." Actually he isn't really short of breath; he is short of oxygen in the blood. So giving the patient oxygen helps the blood to pick up a higher concentration of oxygen as the blood passes through the lungs. Under such conditions, oxygen is used more or less continuously. It is not a "cure." It is a compensation. When, or if, the heart regains sufficient capability, the oxygen is discontinued.

Occasional use is of little value, but I think you can see why giving more oxygen than is needed will not prevent heart disease. That would be pretty much like saying that since food is needed by a starving patient, giving him too much food will prevent starvation sometime in the future.

Answering your last question, yes, use of oxygen can dry the tissues of the nose and throat, but that is a minor inconvenience as compared to the benefits when oxygen is needed.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to become pregnant while menstruating? I am 24 and made a bad mistake with a man. He said I could not possibly be pregnant because of the time in the menstrual cycle but I now am a week overdue and scared to death. — M.C.

You cannot become pregnant while menstruating; your anxiety and remorse are probably the factor which influenced the delayed period.

Note to "A Reader": What you call "self-excitation," or masturbation, is not a sign of insanity, will not bring on insanity, and it has been only occasionally, as in your case, cannot have done any harm.

France Gets Aid, U.K. Tightens Belt believed to have been stressed by several countries at the Bonn meeting.

Authoritative sources at the Bonn conference said they expect a devaluation of between 7 and 10 per cent.

'SAVAGE' CLAMP
The British clampdown announced to Parliament by Jenkins after he flew in to London from Bonn was described as "savagely" by approving Swiss bankers. Sterling, which has been on its United States dollar floor, immediately benefited in the Zurich foreign exchange market.

Devaluation of the franc would mark the 13th time in 40 years that the currency had been trimmed and the second time under the presidency of de Gaulle. The last was on Dec. 26, 1958, seven months after de Gaulle took over and set out to make the franc one of the world's leading currencies.

NO MENTION
The "Group of 10" communiqué after the Bonn meeting made no mention of French devaluation and dealt chiefly with the $2,000,000,000 credit to support the franc against any new assaults by speculators when money markets reopen on Monday.

West German Finance Minister Franz Joseph Strauss however, made this statement to West Germany's Westdeutscher Rundfunk television network: "Here we have the question of devaluation of the French franc. The French government has to decide the extent of it. But there is unanimity that there will be no consideration of a devaluation of other currencies."

STATEMENTS DENIED
But the office of West German Economics Minister Karl Schiller, chairman of the "Group of 10" meeting, issued a statement saying: "Finance Minister Dr. Franz Joseph Strauss has denied alleged statements about the devaluation of the franc as a false report."

It went on to say: "The question, whether the French government may take further measures for the stabilization of the franc, is a matter of payments, and what measures are to be taken cannot be answered at this time."

Only last week, de Gaulle declared devaluation of the franc would be "the worst possible absurdity."

NOTHING OFFICIAL
French officials would say nothing officially Friday night. "There will be no statement tonight," Premier Maurice Couve de Murville said after a meeting with de Gaulle. "We have been preparing for tomorrow's cabinet meeting."

But to French newspapers devaluation was a fact. "Devaluation of the franc: de Gaulle decides the rate," read the headline in an early edition of France Soir. A later edition said: "Devaluation of the franc by 10 per cent maximum."

Le Monde said the devaluation "may be limited."

French opposition politicians and even a group of Gaullists joined with labor unions in demanding an explanation from the government because of its previous reports that the French economy was in good shape.

RIOTING, STRIKES
France's economic difficulties resulted chiefly from rioting and strikes by students and workers last spring. To bring peace, the government ordered wage increases and announced other spending programs that cut into de Gaulle's austerity policies.

The $6,700,000,000 in reserves that de Gaulle had built up before the spring disorders dwindled last week to just under $4,000,000,000.

Confidence in the franc diminished and speculators began selling francs for marks. In the belief the latter would be revalued upward.

Schiller said a news conference in Bonn that the support from the "Group of 10" will make Monday a black day for speculators.

In addition to the $2,000,000,000 credits, France can fall back on a $985,000,000 conditional drawing from the International Monetary Fund.

France also has gold and dollar reserves of nearly $4,000,000,000.

West Germany is providing the largest share of the new credit facility—$600,000,000. It is followed by the United States with $500,000,000. Canada, Britain, Belgium, The Netherlands, Switzerland and Sweden $100,000,000 each.

In Washington, U.S. officials predicted the U.S. dollar will come out of the crisis unscathed.

Bank of International Settlements have allotted $50,000,000 each.

Statement Needed

RICHARD JACKSON of the Colonist's Ottawa Bureau reports that during the past nine weeks members of Parliament seem to be far more concerned about the Nigerian-Biafran civil war than any other matter of national or international importance.

Whether or not Parliament is simply reflecting the feelings of the public at large on the unhappy affair, it is extraordinary that the Biafran situation should have so completely dominated the daily question period that other subjects, subjects far more vital to the nation, such as taxes, medicare, defence, separatism, wheat sales and language rights, to name a few, are all but excluded.

The blame for this unusual development must of course be placed wholly upon the government whose indecisive and vague policies toward Nigeria and Biafra, ranging from its abortive relief attempt to its semi-declared desire not to intervene in another country's domestic affairs, have led to misunderstanding not only within the House but throughout Canada and the world.

The time has come for Prime Minister Trudeau to state his government's stand on the issue clearly in terms so unequivocal that confusion can be eliminated in the minds of all—including those of his own cabinet colleagues.

Political Pose

IT IS INTERESTING to learn how Moscow's obedient press tries to distort events at the recent North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council meeting in Brussels, and the causes and effects of the decisions taken there.

But it must be remembered that when Pravda speaks it is in the words of the Kremlin's propagandists. Its interpretations do not necessarily represent the true reactions of the leaders, but only what those leaders hope the people will believe.

It is incredible, for instance, that the astute Muscovite politicians are really convinced that the NATO ministers and military advisers only pretended concern at the Warsaw Pact action in Czechoslovakia and the announcement of the Soviet readiness to intervene in other states within its area of influence if it was deemed the socialist system was in any way threatened.

And yet that is what Pravda says. "Fabricated talk," is what the newspaper calls the expressions of alarm and warning at Brussels. An imaginary Soviet threat was invented, Pravda declares, to frighten the smaller member-states into remaining in the alliance.

Pravda's performance, it must be assumed, is part of the political pose of incredulity that any nation could possibly suspect the Soviet intentions. This attitude of innocence is being maintained even in the face of the threats made against West Germany, based on the Russian interpretation of sections of the United Nations Charter.

Well, Lincoln said it first: "... You can fool some of the people all the time."

Royal Salesmanship

QUEEN ELIZABETH II has returned home from what can only be described as a triumph.

Her South American visit—actually, she and Prince Philip visited only two countries, Brazil and Chile—was a success from any point of view. Her Majesty won the hearts of the people and their demonstrations, sometimes embarrassingly enthusiastic, were of a warmth to flatter the royal guests and delight the British communities which expect to benefit from friendliness engendered.

The Queen was on a mission, to be frank about it. And its results were gratifying.

The Daily Mail says: "The tour was a lively reminder of the great opportunities for trade. Latin America has been the forgotten continent for too many British businessmen."

Another London newspaper, the Daily Telegraph, says a lesson has been learned from Her Majesty's tour: "... that South America is no longer, if ever it was, a long sleep interrupted by meaningless coups d'état; a real revolution is happening there, social, economic and industrial. ... If we want any part of this we must be out there trading, and above all, investing. We did it before, and would be welcome back."

The paper might have added that the British, traders and investors alike, will be the more welcome because of the impression made by the Queen upon the masses of the people. In fact, it might be said, without any flattery or derogatory intent, that Her Majesty did a magnificent job of salesmanship, even if unwittingly.

What the Hell ...

DURING THE COMMONS question period on Monday Prime Minister Trudeau was widely quoted as asking: "Who the hell is the member for Burnaby-Seymour?"

On Tuesday the prime minister stated that he was wrongly reported. What he had asked, he said, was "where the hell the minister was" to whom he could refer the question which triggered his remark.

The original question in question was put by Louis Comeau (PC—South West Nova) who asked if there would be an investigation into how the report of a consultant to the Company of Young Canadians got into the hands of the member for Burnaby-Seymour. Mr. Comeau's question still remains unanswered, which—as even Mr. Trudeau might say—is a hell of a way to treat a member of Parliament.

Bulgarian Invasion Feared

Can Tito Keep the Lid on the Balkans?

By GENE GREGORY from Vienna

IT WAS NOT by accident that President Josip Broz Tito chose Leskovac, a small town on the Bulgarian frontier, to deliver his rousing speech to the Yugoslav nation on the 25th anniversary of the partisan uprising against the Nazis.

Balkan policy, in particular relations with Bulgaria, has become the hottest issue in Yugoslavia in recent weeks.

The major concern of the Yugoslavs is the continuing campaign of the Bulgarian press denying the existence of an independent Macedonian nation and culture, claiming that Macedonians are Bulgarians. But there are over two million Macedonians in Yugoslavia, one million of whom make up two-thirds of the population of the Macedonian republic—one of the six in the Yugoslav federation.

Reasonably certain that the sudden interest of the Bulgarian press in the Macedonian question was not likely to have been spontaneous, the Yugoslavs have been led to conjecture that Sofia has been preparing a Czechoslovak-type invasion of Yugoslavia.

Declaration by Bulgarian officials after the invasion of Czechoslovakia—in which they expressed a readiness to intervene militarily in fraternal states in the future when, according to the Bulgarians or their allies, the internal development of a socialist country is not in accordance with "the highest interest of socialism"—was interpreted in Belgrade as a direct menace to other Balkan countries, and particularly aimed at Yugoslavia and Romania.

The Yugoslav press responded with firmness, implying that the Soviet Union was urging Bulgaria to increase its pressure on Yugoslavia.

Twice in the span of two weeks the Yugoslav parliament discussed the political situation in the Balkans, ending with a committee of foreign affairs recommendation for a broadening and strengthening of co-operation with all Balkan countries in order to deter great power interference in what was once known as the "underbox of Europe."

But on entirely another key, Yugoslav Prime Minister Mila Spiljak warned the Bulgarian government against their alleged "territorial claims" and plans for an invasion of Yugoslavia.

And in his Leskovac speech, Marshal Tito pointedly and firmly repeated his condemnation of the Czechoslovak invasion which, in his words, violated the principles of non-intervention and independence. The Yugoslav president, shifting on his feet like a seasoned boxer, castigated the five Warsaw Pact powers—the Soviet Union, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Bulgaria—for their press attack on Yugoslavia and left no doubt about what the 20 million Yugoslavs would do if their country were attacked.

Emphasis given by the Yugoslav parliament's foreign affairs committee of "the necessity of a further engagement of Yugoslav foreign policy in the strengthening and broadening of co-operation with all Balkan countries" has inevitably led to speculations about the revival of the moribund Balkan Pact.

Mixed Symbolism

Austria's Eagle Attacked

By FREDERICK SCHEU from Vienna

A CURIOUS controversy has arisen in Vienna, where Austrians are at present celebrating the foundation of their republic. The dispute is over Austria's coat of arms.

This consists of an eagle holding in one claw a hammer and in the other a sickle. Some people declare that these are Communist symbols and in these days of turmoil in Central Europe they are unusable for a democratic and neutral state like Austria.

In fact the Austrian eagle has no Communist tendencies whatever. When the famous double-headed eagle of the Habsburgs disappeared with the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy in 1918, it was replaced by a one-headed bird of the same species. The republican eagle of Austria was provided with a hammer to symbolize the workers and with a sickle to symbolize the farmers, the two principal estates of Austria. A citizens' crown which the eagle wears is said to represent the third estate—the burghers or the middle class. At present the eagle also holds a broken chain to symbolize Austria's liberation from the Nazis in 1945.

A movement has started to deprive the eagle of all its symbols (except for the crown against which no objection is raised apparently). The government party, the conservative Austrian People's Party, appears to be uncertain in its attitude, but the Socialists are against any change in the republican symbols. Yet as the Socialists in Austria are very anxious to avoid any appearance of leanings toward co-operation with the Communists, they would probably not put up any strong resistance if the movement to remove the symbols gathered force.

No suggestions have so far been made as to what the eagle should get in exchange for his lost attributes. Some experts, however, suggest that the eagle may be considered as an impertinent bird anyway and that it would be more fitting for it to have no eagle at all on its coat of arms, but that the unfortunate bird should be replaced by a simple shield with the colors red, white and red which is also a traditional symbol of Austria.

Others point out that elsewhere republics as well as monarchies proudly show eagles and lions on their coats of arms. It is significant that this controversy is carried on in a friendly fashion. This is a sign that the existence of the days after the death of Stalin, foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia met in Ankara to sign a tripartite Balkan Pact intended to ally the three countries politically, culturally, economically and militarily. It was a five-year treaty, but was to be renewed automatically unless one of its members withdrew before February, 1957. None of them did.

Instead, despite continuing efforts by Tito to reach a reconciliation with Nikita Khrushchev, a 20-year military pact was signed at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, on Aug. 9, 1954, with the three Balkan countries pledging immediate military aid to each other in case of attack from without.

This pact most certainly formed the most peculiar alliance in modern European history, linking a constitutional monarchy (Greece), a parliamentary republic (Turkey) and a Communist single-party state (Yugoslavia). Both Greece and Turkey have been members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization since 1952, while Yugoslavia has been the self-proclaimed champion of non-alignment and opponent of all military blocs and alliances.

In terms almost identical to articles of the NATO pact itself, the Balkan Pact assured Tito that if Yugoslavia were attacked by the Soviet Union and its satellites, NATO would support Turkey and Greece. In coming to Yugoslavia's aid, one can but wonder if the recent step-up in deliveries of military hardware to Greece is in any way related to these provisions.

It goes without saying that the situation in 1968 is different from that prevailing in 1954, when the Balkan Pact was signed. More than 14 years ago, Tito was threatened by a Moscow-led pact which the ghost of Stalin had not yet been replaced by the gronies of peaceful coexistence, and Turkey and Greece were menaced by Bulgaria and Albania as well as the Soviet Union.

Still, and quite significantly, these three countries—especially Yugoslavia—are today once more under as much pressure as they were when the pact was signed.

For their part, the Yugoslavs have considered since Khrushchev's trip to Belgrade in May, 1955, that the Balkan Pact has been "put on ice." But with warmer winds of controversy blowing from the East, Tito may find he can no longer allow himself the luxury of depriving himself of this shield of protection.

Unlike the invasion of Czechoslovakia, Soviet occupation of Yugoslavia would directly threaten American and NATO security in the Mediterranean.

Thus, Moscow can expect an entirely different response from the United States and its NATO allies should it threaten the independence of Yugoslavia. And the Balkan Pact is all the legal justification NATO would need for coming to the defence of a beleaguered Belgrade. (Copyright News Service)

Among Europe's Leaders

Impatience With de Gaulle

By SUE MASTERMAN from The Hague

THE Dutch government is taking the initiative in calling a meeting of the foreign ministers of "all the democratic European countries" next spring. The purpose of that meeting will be to discuss how Europe can achieve greater unity and how the countries who wish to join the Common Market can be brought closer to the rest while President de Gaulle continues to veto their membership.

The leaders of democratic Europe have been seeing a lot of one another during the last few weeks. The two-day conference of the European Movement in The Hague attracted 525 members of Parliament from all countries in the Council of Europe except Turkey and Greece, and seven countries were represented by their foreign ministers. The French foreign minister and the Gaullist members of Parliament boycotted the conference.

Recently the ministers were together again in Brussels for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting to decide what measures will be taken by the NATO countries in the light of the Russian attack on Czechoslovakia. At the same time a meeting was being held of the Western European Union (the Common Market countries plus Britain).

France has withdrawn from the military side of the NATO alliance but has remained politically associated. The French foreign minister, M. Michel Debre, did not turn up at the WEU meeting at the British embassy in Brussels.

During the last few weeks the enmity of the rest of Europe with de Gaulle and his nationalistic policies has reached a climax. The point has come where even the diplomats are at the end of their patience and are looking with ever increasing favor on the plans put forward by the Benelux countries and by Belgian foreign minister, M. Pierre Harmel.

These plans propose that the five remaining Common Market countries (West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg), together with the four applicants for membership of the Common Market (Great

Diplomatic Hobbles

By MARQUIS CHILDS

YOU can hardly swing a cat at any cocktail party in Washington or New York these days without hitting a Nixon contributor with a yearning eye on one of the big embassies in Western Europe. The line grows longer as the hopefuls look back at their cheque stubs to remind themselves of how generous they were in helping to finance the cost of the Nixon campaign which probably broke a record.

This payoff has become a tradition across the years. The posts most sought after are, in order of desirability, London, Paris, Rome, Brussels, Vienna and Bern, with also-rans in the Scandinavian countries, Spain and Portugal. President-elect Nixon's problem will be to parcel out the goodies while producing the fewest tears among the contenders.

You can hear at least a half-dozen names of those convinced they will be rewarded with the Court of St. James's and the pleasure of dining with dukes and duchesses, not to mention Labor cabinet members and newly created Labor peers. For this signal honor the recipient will pay out of his own pocket from $50,000 to $75,000 a year to maintain Windfold House, the ambassador's residence, which was a gift of Barbara Hutton, the Woolworth heiress. Since this is deductible for income tax purposes and since most of the hopefuls are in the high brackets, the cost of running the embassy in proper style is relatively painless.

At times in the past contributors who had anted up $100,000 or more proved to be small disasters. Twofers, arrogant, indifferent or just plain stupid, they were fountainheads of ill will and monuments of ineptitude.

On the whole, however, the system had done no great damage, and in an age when heads of state talk to one another over the transoceanic phone on almost any occasion or no occasion at all the importance of the ambassador is greatly diminished.

The harm it does is to the morale of the professional foreign service. The professionals who live on foreign service salaries cannot, unless they have rich wives, afford the shiny Western European posts. That implacable foe of the diplomatic life, Rep. John J. Rooney of New York, is constantly squeezing down on what he calls the "booze allowance."

It means that a career diplomat living in the Villa Taverna in Rome, a handsome ambassadorial residence, can barely afford to pay the gardeners to keep up the grounds, to say nothing of entertaining in a style befitting the American ambassador and winning the esteem of the host country as the United States is, at best, difficult. Clinging to the hobbles and inhibitions out of the past makes it all but impossible.

Certain glaring faults of administration have been pointed out. Career officers tend to be kept in the same post for short stints of from two to three years. Just as an officer becomes knowledgeable with a developing circle of friends and acquaintances he is sent from, say, Oslo to Kuwait. This costly and wasteful turnover is only one of the built-in eccentricities of administration that call for revision. The conduct of diplomacy by a democracy such as the United States is, at best, difficult. Clinging to the hobbles and inhibitions out of the past makes it all but impossible.

When J. R. Wiggins was named ambassador to the United Nations brickbats were thrown his way on the score of his lack of experience. In the view of this observer Wiggins' experience as editor of the Washington Post and a participant throughout this career in public affairs qualified him perhaps more than an appointee who had spent his years within the diplomatic enclave. The UN ambassadorship is one calling for broad knowledge of the cross currents of American politics as well as a good understanding of relationships throughout the world. In that office Adlai Stevenson, no career diplomat, served with great distinction despite unhappy lapses when he was not cued into American policy at critical moments.

The question confronting Nixon is not who so much as how. He said during the campaign that he intended to make over the state department. As Secretary of State Dean Rusk could tell him along with others in the top echelon who have tried their hand at it, this is easier said than done.

There are also nearly as many ideas as countries on how it should be done. Mr. Maurice Faure, representing the French opposition, tried to soften the terms of the resolution passed at the end of the conference so that it would be acceptable to de Gaulle. He tried to get a part of the resolution scrapped which asked for joint study of international affairs, defence, arms procurement, and monetary questions and the setting up of institutions outside the Common Market so long as progress within the organization was made impossible by the French veto on British membership and the Dutch refusal to go any further before Britain is allowed in.

M. Faure's compromise was in line with the ideas of Mr. Sandor P. P. of the Habsburgs, who had done everything they could to get this resolution passed without a chance for debate. But the meeting demanded a discussion. In the end the organizers were forced, grudgingly, to allow an hour's limited debate in which they selected the speakers. M. Faure was given the last word.

All would have gone according to plan had not Mr. Sico Mansholt, the Dutch vice-president of the Common Market Commission, insisted on a proper vote on M. Faure's amendment and also on another amendment which he himself had put forward. There was a very sharp exchange between Mr. Sandor and Mr. Mansholt. As often delegates rose in protest and the Italians threatened to walk out, the organizers were forced to allow a vote. Mr. Faure's amendment was voted out. Mr. Mansholt's amendment, appealing for a European parliament with supra-national powers and a democratic structure based on universal suffrage, was voted in.

This made the resolution completely unacceptable for the Gaullists and difficult to accept for the British and the West Germans. None of these three governments can risk telling its voters that they are willing to surrender part of their national sovereignty to any European super-parliament.

Provinces May Choose Members

Senate Getting Shot in Arm

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Senate, that dusty, neglected chamber of sober, second thought, is going to be reformed.

The federal cabinet is considering the main proposals for reform, to be presented to the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa next month.

The proposals are expected to take two forms:

● The provinces will be allowed to choose some members of the Senate, to make it more representative of regional interests.

● As a condition of reform, there will be an understanding that that there will be a different approach to the kind of appointments made, to erase the reputation that the Senate is the resting place of political hacks.

Prime minister Trudeau is known to believe that Senators should be more representative of every stream of Canadian life.

He is also conscious that the Senate cannot be the safeguard of minorities while a third of the population, neither French nor British in origin, has little representation.

Lester Pearson wanted to reform the Senate, but found, like so many of his successors, that there was little he could do about it.

Pearson's appointments were nearly all Liberal party appointments. He once offered a Senate seat to former CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, but Coldwell who stood for the Senate's abolition declined.

Just before he left office, at the constitutional conference in February, Pearson suggested to the provinces some areas where they might agree on the road to constitutional reform.

One was the Senate, another was the Supreme Court.

At that meeting, a continuing conference of federal-provincial officials was put to work to see what agreement there could be in readiness for next month's meeting.

In the area of Senate reform, there has apparently been substantial agreement. Most of the provinces like the idea of appointing Senators directly.

This idea, however, meets some criticism among existing senators: "If Senate appointments are political plums handed out by the federal government, it just means that the provincial governments will be able to give them to their own party faithful and those who have outlived their usefulness."

Trudeau's objective, according to his advisers, is to make the Senate "functional." He does not favor making it an elected chamber.

The Senate, in recent months, seems to have been trying to head off reform imposed from the outside by making itself more "functional."

The committee structure is being increased, and Senators want Senate committee enquiries into poverty, the student protest and other areas.

The government leader in the Senate, Paul Martin, wants to see a Senate foreign relations committee, similar to the kind in the U.S.

Trudeau has left no doubt in the minds of his new Senators that he will reform their chamber.

He has appointed three new Senators since he took office — and each has been warned that reform of the Senate was in the wind.

JFK Memory Lives On

Thousands Walk to Grave

AP, from Washington

Thousands walked along a road of remembrance to the grave of John Fitzgerald Kennedy Friday on the fifth anniversary of the assassination of the United States president.

Scores brought flowers to leave on the old stone paving at the grave on a hillside in Arlington National Cemetery. A White House military aide brought a wreath from President Johnson.

Flowers also covered the grass around the small white cross that marks the grave of Senator Robert Kennedy, not far from his brother's.

Across the U.S., special masses were held in Roman Catholic churches.

In Dallas, where President Kennedy was felled by the assassin's bullets Nov. 22, 1963, Acting Mayor Frank Hoke placed a wreath of red and white carnations at a plaque marking the site.

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, widow of President Kennedy, attended a mass in New York, where she has an apartment. Then she went into seclusion in a home she rents in Peapack, N.J.

Her new husband Aristotle Onassis, arrived in New York from Europe by air Friday night and joined her.

The only remaining Kennedy brother, Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, went to his brothers' graves at 7:30 a.m. with his wife and two of their children. With them also were four other children believed to be Robert's. They stayed 20 minutes.

Kennedy returned by himself at noon to stand for a few moments among the visitors. He paused on the terrace to look out over the city of Washington across the Potomac River, bright in the autumn sunshine, before walking slowly back to his car.

Phosphate-Rich Atoll Gets Special Status

From UPI

The tiny Western Pacific island of Nauru will become the first state to try a new, experimental type of Commonwealth membership.

The new "special membership" has been created to fit the needs of states too small to assume the obligations of full Commonwealth membership.

The phosphate-rich island of Nauru, with an area of only eight square miles and an indigenous population of 3,000, became an independent state Jan. 31 after being a mandate under British, New Zealand and Australian trusteeship since the end of the First War.

Under the new membership category, states like Nauru will not be a member of the United Nations, will not attend the periodic prime ministers' conferences and will not have diplomatic missions in most of the fellow-Commonwealth states.

They will, however, be fully independent and have the right to attend functional meetings of the Commonwealth organization.

Ruling Rhodesia Party Dims Settlement Hope

The ruling Front Party has published a proposed new constitution for Rhodesia, introducing a form of political racial separation to be approved by national referendum.

The proposal dimmed hopes of a settlement with Britain over Rhodesia's self-proclaimed independence. A key issue is rule by the nation's 250,000 whites over the nation's 4,000,000 blacks.

From AP, Reuters

Almost 2,000 refugees have streamed through a huge cordon of American marines surrounding two battalions of North Vietnamese troops near the small northern town of Dien Ban in South Vietnam.

The 5,000 U.S. marines were standing almost shoulder to shoulder in a massive 14-mile ring around an estimated 1,200 North Vietnamese regulars, an American military spokesman said.

The noose is tightening as 2,000 South Vietnamese troops sweep through the area in an attempt to flush out North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrillas.

Eighty-seven North Vietnamese and 10 Americans had been killed in the operation up to midnight Thursday night.

A big refugee camp packed with men, women and children from the cordon area has sprung up a few miles from Dien Ban, about 14 miles south of the northern military city of Da Nang.

Villagers still inside the cordon — estimates say there may be 7,000 — have until today to get out.

After then, all persons in the area who have not been given special passes will be considered hostile, the spokesman said.

Special passes were being issued to one member of each refugee family to allow him to stay within the cordon to protect his home and property from looters.

The area traditionally has been a North Vietnamese and Viet Cong stronghold.

Da Nang was under Communist rocket attack Friday for the third consecutive day. The U.S. command said five rockets landed just outside the big base, killing three Vietnamese civilians and wounding four others.

In Saigon, Viet Cong terrorists tried to bomb a police station about four blocks from the residence of U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and two were captured.

Eleven Dead In 'Heinous Arab Crime'

JERUSALEM (CP) — In the worst terrorist incident since Israel became a nation 20 years ago, explosives packed into a parked car exploded Friday in a jammed marketplace in the Jewish sector of the Holy City, killing 11 persons and injuring 55.

Premier Levi Eshkol declared that "the rulers of the Arab states bear full responsibility for this heinous crime."

Police estimated that 440 pounds of explosives, probably TNT, blew up, setting six shops ablaze, damaging others, wrecking 20 cars and sending hundreds of Jews fleeing in panic.

Shortly thereafter, panic turned to anger and a Jewish mob halted an Arab taxi and wrecked it, shouting: "Kill the Arabs, Kill the Arabs!"

Police immediately threw up roadblocks between the Jewish sector and the eastern or Arab section to keep Jews from carrying their anger into the Arab quarter of the Holy City.

The army also clamped a strict curfew on Arab Jerusalem, virtually dividing the Holy City for the first time since Israel seized and annexed Old Jerusalem in the war of June, 1967.

In Beirut, Lebanon, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine said Friday night that it was responsible for the explosion.

A spokesman said the operation was "in retaliation for Israeli terrorist actions against our people."

"It reminds the Israelis of all operations undertaken in Hebron, Jerusalem and Tel Aviv and that we are able to retaliate continuously against the fascist, arbitrary actions," the spokesman said.

Jewish housewives were stocking up on groceries for the Sabbath weekend in the Mahaneh Yehuda market near the heart of the Jewish quarter when the explosive went off with a roar, ripping a crater six feet wide in the street.

Two Arabs were among the injured. Police began rounding up Arabs throughout the area.

Most of the 500 Arabs picked up for questioning were released. Police made them use the back exits of the police station to avoid possible trouble with Jews.

It was the third bomb attack in the Holy City in recent months. The worst one previously was in September, where bombs planted by Arab saboteurs killed one Israeli and wounded 33. Mobs of Jews attacked Arabs after the bombing.

Czech Daily

Dissenters' Purge Advocated

PRAGUE (UPI) — Czechoslovakia's most authoritative Communist newspaper called Friday for a purge of dissenters against the new, hard party line. The threat came as almost 1,000 intellectuals drafted a protest against the "heartache" caused by a repression of freedoms.

Rude Pravo, the Communist party daily, carried a commentary declaring the party should not permit variations from the party line. A new line adopted last Sunday by the party central committee removed most of the liberal reforms put into effect earlier in the year.

CULTURAL UNIONS

The commentary acknowledged that "it may sound harsh, but we should think of the situation in which we find ourselves . . . Russian troops still occupy Czechoslovakia."

A meeting of intellectuals in Prague involved the executive committees of all the major cultural unions — journalists, writers, sculptors, artists and musicians. Their spokesman criticized the nation's rulers for failing to consult with them before making "decisions concerning our sphere," such as the banning of publications.

The meeting lasted more than nine hours, and the spokesman said they would issue a formal statement when it reconvenes Tuesday.

Setback for Canada

Budding Exports Nipped

OTTAWA (CP)—New British import restrictions are expected to set back Canadian sales of manufactured products—the very area where Canada's export efforts have been concentrated.

Official calculations based on preliminary information from London Friday conclude the restrictions will hit about one-third of Canada's exports to Britain, worth about $240,000,000 annually.

DEFICIT AID

Should the restrictions prove wider than Ottawa officials first believed, they could affect about half of a Canadian export market worth about $1,200,000,000 last year.

The import restrictions, announced by British treasury chief Roy Jenkins Friday, are designed to improve the country's trade performance and relieve pressure on the pound sterling.

They would also aim to help forestall any sharp worsening of Britain's trade deficit. That could result if foreign buyers switched purchases to France from Britain after a devaluation of the franc made competing French products cheaper.

Products subject to import-deposit control include fabricated materials and manufactures. The fabricated list includes newspaper and other papers, plywood and dressed lumber, chemicals, steel, plastics and synthetic rubber.

Newsprint sales to Britain last year were worth $44,000,000, other papers $41,000,000, plywood $31,000,000, chemicals $28,000,000, plastics and synthetic rubber $15,000,000 and steel $12,000,000.

Government officials expressed concern Friday because the British restrictions are designed to hit a field considered the main growth area for Canadian exports.

Jenkins

Canada has been trying to develop exports of manufactured products.

The import rules are effective for one year starting next Wednesday.

Food, oil and raw materials are exempt from the import-deposit program.

Canadian officials based their assessment of the program's impact on the categories of imports subjected to Britain's last import-control program—a tariff surcharge imposed four years ago and withdrawn two years later.

The restrictions are not expected to include processed raw materials such as unwrought metals, wood pulp and undressed lumber.

Canadian officials are less concerned with the impact of devaluation of the franc on Canada's exports. It would tend to raise the price of Canadian products in France.

Canadian exports to France last year, at $83,619,000, were only 7 per cent the value of sales to Britain. Canada sells mainly minerals and wood products to France.

Imports from France last year, chiefly automobiles, books, magazines and wine, were valued at $130,080,000.

Price of French products in Canada could decline, tending to boost sales, but in practice a small devaluation rarely lowers prices of export goods by much.

Taxes Up—Beer to Cars

Shopping Bomb Hits Britons

LONDON (CP)—The Labor government dropped a new bomb on the British consumer and importer Friday, taking the pre-Christmas glitter from the British market in a fresh effort to save the pound from international attack.

Taxes were pushed up on virtually everything from beer to automobiles. A new lid was placed on bank lending and a new scheme introduced to slash imports by forcing importers to deposit huge sums with the customs department.

"A devastating blow to any hope of rising prosperity," was the way the Opposition described the latest freeze, taken as devaluation of the French franc appeared imminent.

POUND PRESSURE

The British pound had been badly hit by the French-West German currency quarrel and by the fact that Britain is still not making many yards in its crucial drive to balance its overseas accounts.

The pound, which was cut by 14.3 per cent just a year ago, will not be devalued again, Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons on his return from the Bonn monetary crisis talks.

But the speed in which he announced fresh austerity simply indicated his concern over the shaky currency situation.

In Switzerland bankers spoke of the possibility of a new attack on the pound in the days ahead. Much would depend on what France does with the franc.

For Canadian and other exporters, the most important element in Britain's new belt-tightening is the import deposit scheme, likely to be enacted by Parliament within a week or so and to remain in force for one year.

CHEQUE SCHEME

Under it, importers of semi-manufactured and manufactured goods—about two-fifths of all imports—will have to deposit a cheque with the customs department amounting to 50 per cent of the value of the goods before they can get the imports out of customs.

These deposits, which the government estimated may total about $1,500,000,000 at the end of six months, will be kept by the government without paying interest for that period of time and then returned to the importer.

TWO WAYS

Government officials said the scheme, which Italy has also tried in recent years, will allow the flow of foreign goods in two ways: It will force the importer to scramble for funds to cover the deposits in a tightened money market and because of many cases he will have to borrow the funds at high interest rates, the costs of the imports to consumers will be increased.

Canadian authorities here expressed concern over this scheme. One official suggested it may be a breach of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. But as it became clear that the new curb will affect only semi-manufactured and manufactured goods, it appeared likely that most Canadian foodstuffs and raw materials for the British market would escape the penalty.

BOOKS BALANCE

British officials said it is of the utmost importance that Britain balance her foreign books and produce a surplus in her foreign accounts next year. They estimated the import deposit scheme would cover about $7,280,000,000 worth of imports in the year.

While imposing this and other impediments to imports, the government also hit directly at the consumer, pushing up taxes on beer by a penny a pint, to a total duty of about 12 cents. Whisky which now costs about $7 a quart, will go up by another two cents through higher taxes. A package of 20 cigarettes, now costing between 43 cents and 78 cents, will go up by another five cents.

Higher sales taxes, or purchase taxes as they are called here, will be imposed on the bulk of consumer goods. These went into effect Friday night and are expected to produce an added $850,000,000 in government revenue in a full year.

Instalment Contracts

The legislation, to be administered by the insurance department under the finance minister, would cover federally-incorporated investment companies—finance firms which raise money for investment and are noted mainly for handling instalment sales contracts on behalf of retailers for automobiles, furniture, home appliances and the like.

Most such companies in Canada are incorporated by the provinces but the bigger firms tend to have a federal charter for reasons of prestige or for simplicity in operating nationally.

One government official guessed that between 80 and 90 per cent of acceptance companies are incorporated by provincial governments, but the federally-chartered firms have the major share of the business.

Senator Paul Desrosiers (L.-Quebec), who introduced the bill, described it as "a protective bill for the investing public... providing reasonable control and supervision in the public interest."

Initially after becoming law, the measure would require the companies covered to:

● File with the government annually a statement providing financial and any other information prescribed by the federal superintendent of insurance.

● Submit records to inspection on request.

● Refrain from making investments knowingly where there may be a conflict of interest, notably in another company where the officers of the investing firm or their relatives have a substantial interest.

Flowers, Sea Coexist

By M. V. CHESNUT

Judging by real estate prices hereabouts, a seafront or sea-view home is the most desirable of all properties, and this I can understand, for the ever-changing aspect of the sea provides constant interest.

Gardening along the sea front, though, poses its own special problems; among the hazards are salt air, blown spray, sandy soil, almost constant wind the year round, and occasional violent salt-laden gales.

To compensate for these disadvantages, the saltchuck gardener has fewer severe frosts and a more constant temperature than the fellow a few miles inland. A seaside garden can be a thing of wondrous beauty and interest, but it is necessary to choose plants which have an unusual tolerance for salt, sand and wind.

Some kind of hedge or windbreak is nearly always needed, and Eucalyptus, Echidnopsis and Verticordia are all easy to grow close to saltchuck. With a somewhat richer soil than the usual beach sand, Tamarisk will grow to 15 feet and will thrive under a bombardment of salt sea spray. Tamarisk is a lovely thing when smothered in its sprays of pink blossoms; the hardy Puschias, too, revel in salt air and are good either for hedges or as specimen trees.

There is no need, however, to give up ordinary garden flowers when you move to a seafront home. Most kinds will get by with a little protection from the wind, and it is worthwhile doing a bit of experimenting on a small scale to see how your particular favorites fare.

It is best, though, to concentrate on those with sturdy stems and a compact habit of growth, steering clear of the very tall, top-heavy kinds. Delphiniums, for instance, will require such careful staking as to be hardly worth the trouble.

Two popular flowers which get along surprisingly well under seafront conditions are roses and dahlias, particularly the latter. Dahlias grow splendidly and seem to remain in bloom quite a bit longer than those grown inland, although here, too, it is best to avoid the tall, mop-headed varieties and grow dwarf and intermediate kinds.

Some rather unexpected flowers thrive under seaside conditions. I know of one garden within spitting distance of the water where the soil is almost pure sand, and this is almost pure sand. Portulaca and Mesembryanthemum seem to have a natural affinity for sea and sand.

Gladolus and Tigridas grow exuberantly in the salt air, although gladolus have to be supported with special care. Thyme, Armeria, Eryngium and Sea Lavender are all maritime plants, always found close to the sea in their wild state, and all do well in the seafront garden.

Pinks and carnations have a violent dislike for polluted air and I have known failures caused by motor exhaust fumes along a busy highway; these plants do exceptionally well in the clean salt air. Commercial carnation growers in England make it a regular practice to spray their plants regularly with salt water to promote healthy growth.

On the other hand, your seafront roses will probably suffer more from black spot than when grown in the heart of the city. Apparently, industrial fumes act as a fungicide against black spot.

It is easy to see from the places where the wild broom is found that this family is a lover of sea air, and the dwarf hybrid kinds are excellent subjects for the seaside rock garden. Spanish broom is even tougher than the dwarfs, while the double-flowered ones will grow even in pure beach sand.

Probably the best shrub of the lot for the saltchuck garden is the Saltbush, Atriplex halimus, growing six feet tall with silver grey foliage.

Outside of the salt-laden wind, the biggest problem is the soil, which is nearly always lean and hungry. Drainage is hardly ever a problem, but such sandy or gravelly soil needs generous enriching with manure, peat, compost or other organic matter.

ARTHUR HOPPE Adds Chapter to History

On to Victory in Vietnam

Herewith is another unwritten chapter from that unpublished work, A History of the World, 1950 to 1999. Its title: Victory in Asia.

The early refusal of the Saigon government to take part in the Paris peace talks — and its obdurate lack of cooperation when at last it was forced to the negotiating table — caused a subtle shift of public opinion in the United States.

"Ungrateful wretches," was the kindest remark. "After all we've sacrificed for their freedom and independence."

"Let's pick up our marbles and go home," cried the Democrats.

"Let's blow the whole lousy country to bits," cried the Hawks.

"Hold on," said the President. "A great nation like us cannot act out of spite nor out of rage. But I think I have a solution."

So he called a meeting of the National Security Council. "Gentlemen," he said, "what does a great nation like us do when another country threatens the peace? What did we do in Japan, in Germany, in the Dominican Republic?"

"Why," said the Secretary of State, "we sent a huge army to occupy them and bring them to their knees."

"Exactly," said the President with a smile, "and who now threatens the peace in Southeast Asia?"

"South Vietnam, sir. But...

"Just a minute, sir," said the Defense Secretary, bewildered. "We can't send a huge army to occupy them and bring them to their knees, because... Well, because... I mean our huge army's already there."

"That," said the President beaming, "just shows our foresight."

It was, of course, the shortest war in American history. It was over before Life or Time could hit the streets with a 12-page supplement on The Corrupt, War-Mad Saigon Generals.

It was over before the hit tune — Let Bygones be Bygone (I'm Off to Capture Saigon) — reached the Top 10.

It was over before the Pentagon could revise its war maps showing "enemy-held territory."

South Vietnamese troops, who'd never showed much interest in getting killed, happily surrendered in droves. And U.S. troops, no longer having any allies to defend, happily took ship for home.

So peace came at last to Vietnam. And all factions in the U.S. were delighted with the outcome.

"We always said that withdrawing was the only answer," said the Doves happily. "And now we have."

"We always said we could win a land war in Asia," said the military happily. "If we just picked the right enemy."

Of course, the world was somewhat confused. But the President gave assurance that there was no change in American foreign policy.

"The United States stands ready to fight for the freedom and independence of any people anywhere," he said, "as long as they do what they're told."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

McGoohan Wins Role

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Pat McGoohan is definite for Marty Ransohoff's Tel-Pan. Pat took theodolites in Ice Station Zebra—as we knew this "secret agent" would.

Hedy Lamarr was saying that years ago she wrote a script for herself based on the Biblical story of Esther. She wanted a comparatively unknown young actor for the role of King Ahasuerus, but no studio would take a chance on him. The lad is well known today under the name of Richard Burton... Incidentally, Richard and Elizabeth can take cheer from the fact that their Boom—a huge flop here—is a big hit in Paris.

It was a bad week for Elliot Gould. Not only was he slapped with a $200,000 suit by the photographer who claims he bashed him when trying to take candids of Barbra Streisand, but his deal to produce some pictures at MGM fell through. Well, most things have fallen through at MGM until they pick a new boss.

Anna Maria Albergheiti did not want to leave her family in Hollywood, so 19-year-old Victoria Mallory will play the role Anna Maria created in Carnival—for Jean Dailymple. "Her name is Vickie Morales," Jean told me after returning from the military funeral, with full honors, accorded her late husband, General Philip Glinder, at West Point. "Her father was Philip's bandmaster in Korea, and we have known her all her life."

Box Harrison explained why he and Richard Burton agreed to play aging homo-sexuals in Stalroose. "We're too old, too famous, and too rich to worry about the consequences."

Dawn Addams, who has had a difficult life, will marry actor-impresario Michael Howard.

It is now just a few weeks before the arrival of the Sophia Loren-Charlton Heston heir or heiress. Good luck.

Jean Louis Trintignant in Les Eclipses reminded me of Charles Boyer at his romantic best in pictures like Algiers. Someone else had the same thought—Jack H. Harris, who plans to star Jean-Louis in remakes of Boyer's hits.

I tried to add up how much it had cost AVCO-Embassy for all those pages and pages of advertising in last week's Variety, but I'm not a mathematician. But adding up the pictures on the agenda, Joe Levine is now the most important picture producer in the world, including the so-called major studios.

Airs His Thoughts

The prison guard is but another kind of captive; one who goes home at night in body, but whose spirit is as much chained as those he leaves behind him.

Beautiful women are often dissatisfied with their looks, witty people are often discontented with their wit, rich people are often restless and anxious about their money—and, absurd as it seems to those without such attributes, it is certain that nothing we have brings us happiness, but only what we are, what we believe to be essentially worthwhile in the core of our character.

One of the permanent self-delusions of mankind was succinctly expressed by Benjamin Constant, when he observed: "Most men, in politics and in all other affairs as well, sacrifice the results of their imprudence to the firmness of their principles."

"Popularity" is fame handed out in a currency that becomes inflated so fast that it is soon as worthless as Confederate banknotes.

People who buy "decorator accents" for their homes deserve exactly what the phrase implies.

Can anything be more absurd than the victim trying the losers for "war crimes," when nobody has ever been tried for the crime of war itself?

The decreasing amount of sunlight we get, due to increasing air pollution, may turn out to have grave long-term genetic effects on the human organism, since recent research indicates that the amount of light entering the eyes of animals is proportionate to their resistance to infection and toxicity.

The people who insist that literature is corrupting morality never pause for a moment to consider the opposite relationship—that our morality is corrupting literature, which is far more likely causal nexus.

Freedom, said Camus, "is nothing else but a chance to be better," but most of us use the word to justify our desire to be worse without penalty.

Riders Need to Adjust If Mud Not Their Dish

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders can expect the game field conditions for the second game of the Eastern Football Conference final as were credited with helping Toronto Argonauts score a 13-1 upset victory in the first game last Sunday.

Snow and rain were forecast for today's game here and it was predicted that temperatures would be in the 30s.

Argos believe that a soggy field improves their chances, but the view is not shared by the Riders.

Today's CFL Eastern Conference playoff game between Ottawa and Toronto can be seen on channels 2 and 6 starting at 11 a.m.

Ottawa-quarterback Russ Jackson is among the believers. He claims that it was the Toronto blitz and the failure of his teammates to do anything about it which gave Argos an unexpected lead for the second game of the total-point series.

In any event, the Ottawa club is trying to do what it can to provide a firm field. It obtained a helicopter, which went to work Friday afternoon.

Officials hoped that the machine's whirling rotor blades would get rid of much of the water accumulated by recent rain and snow. However, the effort appeared to bring more water to the surface. And in the middle of the drying operation, a mixture of rain and snow began to fall.

The tarpaulin was brought out and the helicopter sent back to its base, leaving little doubt but that the game would be played on a soggy surface.

PHYSICALLY READY

Confident that they won't have any trouble overcoming the slender Toronto lead, the Riders reported all hands healthy and that the same lineup they used in the first game would start.

Riders hope that Vic Washington, their starry rookie halfback who played the first game with a leg injury and was held to 28 yards in nine carries, will have benefited from the six days of rest.

Neither club was saying anything about game plans but indications at their workouts were that the Riders might give Ron Stewart, veteran Canadian halfback, more service.

FORGOTTEN MAN

Stewart, once an outstanding runner and a good pass-catcher, has been used mainly for blocking this season.

With temperatures likely to be above freezing, it is expected that both clubs will do more passing than they did in the first game, which was played in a cold wind.

Wind is not expected to be a major factor today, the forecast being no more than 15 miles an hour at its worst.

GABLER'S HOPING

Among the fans most interested in the outcome are the Gabler family of Royal Oak, Mich., which is hoping for a "double."

Wally Gabler, who played in the 1964 Rose Bowl game before coming to the Argos, is playing for the chance to be in the Grey Cup final. His brother, Frank, is a flanker at the University of Michigan and will probably play in the Rose Bowl this year if the Wolverines can beat Ohio State for the Big Ten title.

UNSOLD TICKETS

As for fans, about 25,000 are expected at the game. The Argos are still about 3,000 tickets short but the Ottawa box office was one of the quietest places in the city Friday.

However, the Argos will have a large contingent of supporters. The club has sold 802 tickets and the Toronto Playback Club has taken another 331.

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

TORONTO (CP)—There were square dances, gaudy cowboy shirts, Indians, spurs, horses and hot flapjacks served from chuckwagons on Toronto streets 20 years ago.

On Nov. 26, 1948, hundreds of fans arrived from Calgary to support their Stampede in the Grey Cup game next day to decide the Canadian football championship.

The Alberta foothills contingent, bursting with pride on Calgary's first trip to the Grey Cup contest, rode a special train, 2,500 miles — three days and two nights — to do it.

The western blow-out, which reached a frenzy when the Stampede upset Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7, changed the Grey Cup picture forever. A swinging party had been added as an accessory to a football game.

IN TRANSIT

Now, after 19 years in the wilderness, the Stampede are back and Calgary's Grey Cup parade committee is planning a real bash. The chuckwagons and saddles are on their way.

The Stampede made it Wednesday night with a 25-12 win over Saskatchewan Roughriders in overtime to capture the best-of-three Western Football Conference final in straight games.

The 1948 Stampede had a tougher time in the WFC final, a two-game, total-points affair with Saskatchewan. The first game was a 4-4 draw and Calgary took the second, 17-6, on a couple of touchdowns by Keith Spalding.

REASON TO HOOT

The Grey Cup game itself was a hard-fought classic. Ottawa held a 7-6 lead into the fading moments of the fourth quarter. Then a lateral by Rider quarterback Bobby Paterson to Pete Karpuk went astray on the Ottawa 34-yard line. Woody Strode, who now earns his money as a movie actor, picked up the ball, ran for a few yards and then tossed a lateral to Chick Chikowsky.

Chikowsky ran to the Ottawa 10-yard line, and on the next play Pete Thodou tore into the end zone for the clinching points.

STOCKERS 2, VIKINGS 1

But sparked by Bob Mildenberger, a 155-pound Barker and the club's leading scorer, Renfrew erupted for 19 points.

Hornets, who recorded seven shutouts this season, including a 35-0 victory over Oak Bay Farmer Construction in the Island final, are led defensively by Ron Grahame, Don Dornan, Merv Padgett, Rob Hill and Hank Kneib.

Bob Nelson, Dick Eldridge, Terry Strandlund and Gord Kinsinger provide a strong offence line for quarterbacks John Smith and Dave Granlin, who does the place kicking.

Non-Winners Share Lead

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Paul Bondeson and Ron Cerrudo, four strokes off the pace after the first round, both shot 66 on Friday to share the lead in the Cajun Golf Classic with 36-hole scores of 135.

Neither Bondeson, a tournament player since 1962, or Cerrudo have won a tournament.

One stroke behind the leaders were Dave Stockton, rookie Bob E. Smith and Dewitt Weaver.

Laughton Back

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League said Friday they are calling up centre Mike Laughton from Cleveland Barons of the American League.

Three-Way Fight For Second Place

downed the visiting Kamloops Rockets, 6-4.

The Buckaroos are also in contention for second place, just one point behind Vernon and Victoria.

New Ski Coach

Pro Boxla To Return Next Year

OSHAWA (CP) — President Terry Kelly of the Eastern Division of the National Lacrosse Association announced Friday that Boston, Philadelphia and New York are seeking NLA franchises.

Kelly also said that the eight teams in operation last season will all be back next season.

Making a joint announcement with Western Division president Tom English, Kelly said the two divisions will play an interlocking schedule again next season.

Kelly said attendance at Toronto and Peterborough was better than attendance in the old senior league the previous year. He said owners of the Detroit and Montreal franchises also were satisfied with the first year of operation.

Another Setback For PGA

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The 51st PGA championship will not be played in Dayton.

After a meeting of its executive committee Friday the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce cancelled its contract with the Professional Golfers Association to sponsor the 1969 tournament next Aug. 14-17.

It was another setback for the PGA, arising out of its recent split with the tournament players, who have formed their own association — the American Professional Golfers.

Irascible Scot Back To Head London Club

LONDON (CP) — Tommy Docherty, the fighting and feuding former manager of first-division Chelsea, is back in front-row action to tackle the sort of problem he relishes — pulling an ailing club up by its bootlaces.

This energetic 39-year-old Scot with an almost fanatical dedication to his sport has returned to London to manage Chelsea's neighbor, Queens Park Rangers, in trouble near the bottom of the first division. He left top-flight soccer under a cloud in October, 1967.

During his five-year reign as Chelsea's manager, "Doc" became famous for a blazing temper that frequently got him into trouble with officials.

The Football Association fined him £100 in 1966 for "ungentlemanly remarks" to a referee.

He ruled his players with an iron hand. Back in 1964 he nearly faced a team revolt when he insisted the players spend Boxing Day away from home to prepare for an important match.

A few months later Docherty dropped team captain Terry Venables because he said "there could not be two bosses at Chelsea."

Another time he sent eight players back to London in disgrace after they had stayed out too late the night before a big match.

The famous temper led to his break with Chelsea. During a 1967 summer tour of Bermuda, he got into several arguments with local officials and was later banned for 28 days by the British FA for discipline.

Flying into a typical Docherty mood, he quit Chelsea and went to then second-division Rotherham after turning down big-money offers from German and Greek teams.

Props for Show Go on Ahead

Everything will be ready in Toronto for Calgary fans making the Grey Cup trip next week. Scores of fans were busy yesterday loading up such items as 500 white cowboy hats, saddles, the Calgary float for the parade, a chuckwagon and two stage-coaches for shipment to Toronto. Members of parade committee are shown here as they help load a stage-coach on a freight train.—(CP)

Next games: Friday — Vikings vs. Stockers, 7:45 p.m.; Butler Bros. vs. QOR, 9:15 p.m.

Stockers North Americans held on to a bit of daylight in the Vancouver Island Hockey League last night.

Playing before 1257 in Esquimalt Municipal Centre, they held on to their two-point lead by defeating Butler Brothers, 3-1.

VIKINGS CLIMB

Meanwhile, University of Victoria Vikings came from behind to edge out Queens Own Rifles, 3-2, in a four-point game which moved them into second place and left Butlers and QOR tied for third place, four points out of the lead.

Vikings and Butlers both have a game in hand on the leaders.

Larry Myers opened the scoring in the 12th minute of the first period but Butlers couldn't add to that effort and Stockers went ahead in the second period on scoring shots by Dennis Ferrell and Nick Nicoletti, who scored on a power play.

Dave McCluskey added the insurance goal at 11:50 of the third period.

Vikings had to get two third-period goals to make "Viking Night" a success.

They opened the scoring through Terry Foreman in the first period but George Edie and Les Desjardins, on a power play, scored for Queen's Own Rifles in the second period.

Greg Gow, finishing off a play with Foreman and Mike McAvoy, tied it in the second minute of the third period and McAvoy provided the winner on a solo effort less than four minutes later.

Two-in-One Victory For UVic Vikettes

VANCOUVER—University of Victoria basketball teams managed only one win in three games on the first day of their Vancouver invasion this weekend, but the victory was worth the double.

Vikettes defeated UBC Thunderettes, 44-41, in a game which counted in both the Inter-Collegiate Senior "A" Women's Basketball League and the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association league.

Victory gave Vikettes a record of two wins and three losses in the senior league. It was their first game in the WCIAA. Barb Tribe (11), Jeannie Robertson (10) and Marcia McIntyre (9), led Vikettes, ahead, 21-17, at halftime.

In men's exhibition play at Simon Fraser University, the Jayvees were dumped by the hosts, 97-64, with Blake Iverson and J. D. Smith each scoring 18 points for the winners. Pat Skidlings had 12 for UVic.

In the senior game, the SFU Clansmen downed Vikings, 77-40, with Tom Hatcher scoring 14 points for UVic.

All three teams play at UBC today.

CFL May Move On Punt Returns

TORONTO (CP) — Sometime this winter a move will be made to have the Canadian Football League rules changed to allow blocking on punt returns.

A source close to the CFL executive said in an interview the proposal will be to allow punt blocking in similar manner to blocking on kickoff runbacks.

"Right now, Canadian football consists of two plays and a foregone conclusion," he said.

In 1968, the longest punt runback was 36 yards, by Vic Washington of Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Conference.

The source, who asked his name not be used, said football men in some parts of the country have been lukewarm to the suggested change when it was raised in the past, fearing it might bring with it the "fair catch" rule of United States football.

"We would never go to the fair catch rule in Canada," he said.

The average runback in the CFL this year was 6.2 yards; in the National Football League in the U.S., where return blocking is permitted, it was 6.1 in 1967, the last full season.

However, there were 1122 punts returned in the CFL for 693 yards; in the NFL the figure was 522 punts for 3174 yards.

The NFL, with 118 games compared to 68 in Canada each season, kicked 1110 punts in 1967 but on half of them the fair-catch rule was invoked or the ball was permitted to roll dead.

To have a rule changed, a club sends its submission to the CFL commissioner, who distributes it to the other eight clubs in the league. All clubs study and append comments to the proposal, returning it to the commissioner's office.

From there, the proposal goes to the rules committee for study and decision.

The next meeting of the rules committee will be in January at a site yet to be chosen. The committee will submit its recommendation to the CFL annual meeting the following month, but this is considered a formal football.

Vital Match Today For Rugby Vikings

University of Victoria Vikings have a chance to move into first place in the Victoria Rugby Union first division today when they meet third-place Castaways at Gordon Head campus in a match starting at 2 p.m.

Vikings and Oak Bay Wanderers are currently deadlocked for top spot with eight points each. Wanderers, however, have played one more match.

JBA and Cowichan play in the other first division match at Macdonald Park, also beginning at 2 p.m.

In the second division, UVic Norwegians can stretch their lead to six points over Wanderers with a victory over JBA Barbarians at Camarvon Park. The other UVic team in the division, Saxons, are scheduled to meet Simon Fraser University in an exhibition match in Vancouver. Wanderers take on Cowichan

Damascus Stock Expensive

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — Damascus, 1967 Horse of the Year, is being syndicated for $2,500,000 and will stand at stud at nearby Claiborne Farm.

The syndication, being handled by Claiborne's master, A. B. Hancock Jr., calls for 25 shares valued at $80,000 each. Mrs. Edith Bancroft, Damascus' owner, is retaining six.

Damascus scored 21 victories in 32 lifetime starts for earnings of $1,117,000.

The only time he finished out of the money was his last race, the Jockey Club Gold Cup last month, when he bowed a tendon that ended his racing career.

Hillman Reaches Montreal via Pittsburgh

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Montreal, Minnesota and Pittsburgh approved a three-way National Hockey League deal Friday to implement a trade nullified by NHL President Clarence Campbell.

It all started last week with Minnesota dealing defenseman Larry Hillman to Montreal Canadiens for left winger Brian Smith. But Campbell ruled that Hillman first should have been put on waivers, and ruled him ineligible.

So the North Stars put Hillman on waivers and Pittsburgh Penguins paid the $30,000 waiver price to Minnesota. The North Stars then paid Montreal $30,000 for Smith, Minnesota officials disclosed.

Finally, Montreal purchased the 31-year-old Hillman from Pittsburgh for $30,000 and an unnamed minor league player.

Hillman will play against his former mates, including brother Wayne Hillman, Saturday night when the Canadiens and North Stars meet in Montreal.

The three-cornered transaction as completed before the 72-hour waiver limit expired. Pittsburgh had the first choice at the waiver because of the Penguins' last-place standing in the West Division.

Hillman was not allowed to play for Montreal Thursday night against Philadelphia.

Child in Furnace Room While Mother Worked

TORONTO (UPI) — A 20-year-old woman now living in Glasgow was informed by letter Friday that "her presence is requested" when the inquest into the death of her three-year-old daughter resumes next Wednesday.

Police said the letter had been sent to Mrs. Diane McIntosh, who went to Scotland shortly after her daughter Theresa died here of cerebral hemorrhage Oct. 10.

FURNACE ROOM
An inquest into Theresa's death began Wednesday. Witnesses said she had been confined during August and September 12 hours a day in the hot, ill-ventilated furnace room of a suburban restaurant where Mrs. McIntosh worked as a waitress.

Witnesses said Mrs. McIntosh and a friend, Michael Manelli, who was part-owner of the restaurant, would arrive at the restaurant at 6:30 a.m. and put Theresa in the furnace room. She would be taken out when the two left for the day at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. McIntosh was separated from her husband in August.

According to testimony, the child would scream when she was brought to the furnace room. One witness said the child was fed only rice pudding and some milk.

Coroner Dr. Ross Bennett said Mrs. McIntosh cannot be extradited to Canada unless some specific charge is brought against her.

School Life Needs Variety

Public schools should develop children emotionally, not just intellectually, University of Victoria education professor Dr. Vance Peavy said this week.

Schools at all levels over-emphasize intellectual achievement, Dr. Peavy told the Kiwanis Club of Victoria at the Empress Hotel.

He said the traditional narrow view of education excluded consideration of the child as a person.

The source of emotional strength are breaking down in today's society, Dr. Peavy told the Kiwanians. People change jobs, marriage partners, homes and communities more often, and their roots in society are shallower.

He predicted increasing anti-social behavior.

Group discussions and dramatics in school to help people express themselves and understand others would counter the trend, he asserted.

With more involvement in human values, students would become increasingly self-confident, self-respecting and understanding of others, said the professor.

"What a person gets out of school depends more on his emotional attitude to it than on intellectual capacity," said Dr. Peavy.

Existing Church Pieces Will Be Grafted to New

St. Philip's Anglican Church building project is about to enter its second stage — the moving of its present church from Eastdowne and Neil and its renovations on three acres of property between the extension of Wessex Avenue and Foul Bay Road.

First stage of the project was the purchase of the three acres which will accommodate three buildings in a three-to-five-year plan.

Tenders will soon be called for the present phase. It will entail the use of components of the existing church but the new building will be larger and has been re-designed with better facilities.

It will be used for Sunday services, for Christian education for the young people and by various organizations in need of meeting places.

When the third phase of the project begins, this structure will be converted into an activity building, large enough on the main floor for basketball or three badminton courts.

Rev. John Vickers said this week he hoped the new building will be ready by next Easter. Temporary facilities are being located for the estimated two-month period construction before that date, when the present building will have been dismantled.

In the third stage, a new and permanent circular church will be built. The fourth stage consists of further rooms for Christian education built around an open landscaped circular parkway.

The building fund committee is calling on members to support the new program.

William Mann, chairman of the committee, said the new church will be quite different to the present one, which he considers "a bit quaint."

Thomas More Centre Succeeds

Soft Talk Ending Sock

By LYNNE WALLER

Socking it to them lecture style at the University of Victoria is giving way in some cases to the soft sell of seminar and discussion groups.

And in the search for congenial locations to hold these learning-oriented talks some faculty members are turning to such off-campus locations as the Thomas More Centre on Gordon Head Road.

The centre, now in its second year of operation, is owned by the Roman Catholic Church and run as a kind of communications centre for the community with particular emphasis on the university.

Father Patrick Ratchford, resident priest, says the purpose of the centre is not to provide ready-made programs for an exclusive group of people to accept or reject, but rather to offer members of the community a neutral and informal ground for the exchange of ideas.

Sean Virgo, an English instructor at the university, is one of several faculty members making use of the centre for courses where discussion is perhaps a more important part of the learning process than the lecture.

He teaches a second-year course in contemporary literature to more than 60 students and said the mere size of the class precluded any meaningful exchange of ideas. Last year he used the centre occasionally but this year is using it exclusively for this one class.

The seminar, he said, is used a great deal for higher level courses in English but, although class discussion is encouraged, has not been as common in first and second year courses.

He said that "simply the atmosphere" of the large old house has made "an amazing difference" in the interest and response of his students to this class.

"We tend to underestimate

the effect of the physical structure of a class on students," he said.

Splitting his class into four discussion groups he gets away from what he terms playing the part of a "god figure" and leaves the students largely on their own. He said that, away from the more formal classroom structure of the university, students are better able to articulate.

ROOMS TOO SMALL

Philosophy instructor Richard Martin meets at the centre once a week with a third-year aesthetics class to discuss films. He said he doesn't make use of available space at the University because "the small rooms are rather inhibiting."

He explained, "At the University there is very little feel that it is a functioning organism. It seems to close down at 5 p.m. and there is not much spirit of community."

CHANCE TO SPEAK

"Thomas More Centre," he said, "has a character of its own. The traditional professor-student relationship is broken down and students have the feeling that if they have something valuable to say they will get a chance in this situation."

Dr. Alan Gowans, chairman of the division of art history, is starting to use the centre as a supplement to lectures in an art history course with an enrolment of 375 — a situation where class discussion is next to impossible.

FEW AT FIRST

His arrangement is that if students want to come and talk to him about history he will be available at the centre one evening a week. On the first run only two students showed up, but, he said, "Those were two students I got to know that I wouldn't have ordinarily."

All agreed the lecture is necessary for courses which involve the presentation of information but that the seminar is superior in situation where ideas are being dealt with in an interpretive fashion.

POE HIMSELF

Sociologist Dr. C. R. Pope, on the faculty at the University, explained that the particular value of the seminar or discussion group lies in the fact the student is participating in the exchange of ideas and is not just one member of an audience. He has a stake in the proceedings and with the interaction of others can develop the ability to think for himself.

Dr. Pope stressed the importance of having a relatively small group and a good atmosphere in the place it meets, saying that in an informal situation a student is less likely to feel threatened in his discussion by structures of authority.

FILM FESTIVAL

The current wave of interest in films is also being exhibited at the centre by a six-week film festival due to end Dec. 6. The festival has featured such works as "Winter Keaton's The Railroader, and Lonely Boy, billed as a candid picture of Paul Anka.

What My Religion Means to Me

Calvary Source of Stability Missing in Material Riches

By PETER GROOTENDORST

(Mr. Grootendorst, a furniture salesman, is a member of the First Christian Reformed Church of Victoria.)
I know that the Lord has paid for my sins and shortcomings through his death on Calvary.

This wonderful knowledge makes life rich and meaningful. It gives a stability that is not to be found anywhere else, neither in money, honor, health or whatever there may be. Nothing can take the place of knowing that you belong to the Lord.

At all times a follower of Christ wants to do the will of God. At his work, in his home life, or on holidays the Christian follows Christ.

For a Christian, times may become very difficult but he knows whatever it may be, God will help him.

So often we see the frailty of foundations of people who build on this life's treasures. They make gold, silver, job security or materialism the and do my best. What more can I do?"

For a Christian who knows he is a sinner, it means not only that he does not steal or kill but that he shall love "the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul; with all thy mind and with all thy strength."

This is the first and great commandment taught to us by God. The second commandment is "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

From this we can see how very difficult it is not to be a sinner — yes, it is impossible not to be a sinner.

God created man for His own glory. Therefore, man is to live entirely for the glory and honor of God.

Man was to be God's representative on this earth and to dwell in communion with God. Man was meant to be the lord of this universe but always to glorify God.

Many people do not understand the meaning of being a sinner. They say "I live right base on which to build their lives. They forget the real foundation — building on Christ as our Saviour.

Many people do not understand the meaning of being a sinner. They say "I live right

Give a man a fish and he eats for a day. Teach a man to fish and he eats for life.

This is an illustration of the motto of the YM-YWCA Service. Helping Others to Help Themselves is the motto, and it works in Ecuador, where Indians are learning to read and write.

It works in Jerusalem, where refugees are learning a trade. It works in Zambia, where women are learning to augment the meagre family income by selling crafts of their own making.

This worldwide program, with grassroots support, receives upwards of $2,000 each year from Victoria Y members.

This year's campaign will be highlighted by a Christmas concert in Metropolitan United Church at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 15.

The Amity Singers, directed by Rodney Webster; Eleanor Duff, contralto; Natalie Perles, violinist with Colin Bonneau; the piano and Eric Boothroyd at the organ, will share their talents for this worldwide service.

Special-Drivers Group Gets Star Rating Here

The Star Drivers Association of England has been endorsed by the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

First member of the association in Canada is Mrs. Peggy Hughes of 1907 Shotbolt.

Purpose of the organization is to encourage safe, courteous and considerate driving, treating others on the road as you would wish to be treated, Mrs. Hughes says.

It was founded in 1963 by a group of churchmen to awaken national conscience to the cause of road safety and so reduce the appalling loss of life and limb.

Each member makes six driver promises for safe and courteous driving, which are to be honored at all times.

Each member is given a bumper emblem, three inches in diameter, chrome, with a red centre bearing a white cross. Membership fee is $1.50 a year. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Hughes at 383-9739.

On Basketball Floor

You Can't Beat Mormons

By DON GAIN

Mormons are good basketball players.

Eight young men from different parts of the U.S. and Canada have been taking on local high schools. Here are some of their winning scores: Belmont 83-20; Oak Bay 53-47;

Esquimalt 116-63; Mount View 63-37; Victoria 63-47.

The young men call themselves the Alaskan Canadian Elders. They are all missionaries representing the Mormon church and are currently serving in the Victoria area.

These men usually take time out from their college lives to serve from two to 2½ years without pay. At the completion of their mission, they continue college and remain actively engaged in church work.

There's Kent Davis of Salt Lake City, Utah, six-foot-four, 215 pounds. He was transferred here from Hong Kong last year and will complete his mission at the end of this month. He'll be going back to college in Utah and will major in business administration.

Stephen Stoddard, six-foot-four, comes from Delta, Utah, and will return to College of Southern Utah when he completes his mission in April, 1970.

Larry Myers, six-foot-two, is from American Fork, Utah, and will major in physical education at Snow College, Ephraim, Utah.

Kenneth Rasmussen, six feet, formerly from Utah and now a resident of Arcadia, Calif., will attend the University of Utah and major in law.

Bernett Christensen from Richfield, Utah, is five-foot-ten and will attend Brigham Young University next fall.

Duane Pratt, six-foot-four, from Provo, Utah, will complete his communications major at Brigham Young University.

Bradford Beasley, six feet, is from Salt Lake City. He will continue at Utah State University in September, 1970.

Brent King, five-foot-nine, is from Ontario, Ore., and will continue at Brigham Young in psychology.

Ross Holstetter of Kitchener, Ont., is manager of the team. It is sponsored by the B.C. Life & Casualty Co. of Victoria.

In addition to playing basketball, the young elders have taken on coaching responsibilities.

Elders Stoddard and Christensen are in charge of Claremont High and Elders Rasmussen and King are coaching the Esquimalt boys "B" team.

"In case anybody's been wondering why they haven't seen us as much lately knocking on doors," said Elder Rasmussen, "it certainly doesn't mean we've given up."

"And if anybody answers the door and finds two very tall young men in dark suits, don't send them away, they may want a basketball game."

Carol Concert Helps Appeal

A 22-year-old tradition will be continued Dec. 4 at Metropolitan United Church when the Victoria Lions Club sponsors a Christmas Carol concert by elementary school children.

The choir will be directed by Harry Bigsby, director of music for the Greater Victoria School District. Proceeds of the 8 p.m. concert will aid the United Appeal.

Armed Forces Pay Hike Biggest for Top Bracket

OTTAWA (CP) — A pay increase of about 6.5 per cent for members of the regular and reserve armed forces, retroactive to Oct. 1, 1968, was announced Friday by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux.

The estimated annual cost is about $42,000,000, excluding the consequential increases in the liability of the government for pension contributions.

Generals receive the biggest increase: $140 a month for a lieutenant-general to $2,307 a month.

Privates get the smallest increase: $10 a month for a recruit undergoing basic training, to $225 a month.

There are some 98,500 members of the regular armed forces and about 30,000 in the reserves.

New pay scales for the reserves are to be announced later.

Cadieux said in a statement that the treasury board has ordered a thorough study of military pay rates to be completed by October next year.

The armed forces received pay increases of 9.8 per cent in 1966 and of 4 per cent last year.

The pay increase had already been provided for financially in the 1968-69 defence budget of $1,715,000,000.

Post of Ombudsman Heads Reform List

BELFAST (Reuters) — The local government structure within three years.

It also promised a fairer system of distributing government-built homes, with more emphasis on need, and the speedy implementation of a plan aimed at transforming economic and social conditions in Londonderry, where unemployment is high.

It agreed to put into cold storage special powers to meet terrorism. These were the right to arrest and hold any offender against internal security without trial and to suppress newspapers for the same reason.

The government said the powers would be brought back later if the need arose.

College Suspends Normal Classes

From UPI, CP

There were more developments on the exasperating North American campus front Friday.

San Francisco State College officials suspended normal classroom instruction until after the weekend as police and demonstrators clashed anew on the troubled campus.

The step appeared to be in defiance of trustees of the state college system and of Governor Ronald Reagan, who have demanded classes be kept in operation, by police force if necessary.

Ninety-one students, almost all of them Negroes, were suspended from Wisconsin State University at Oshkosh, Wis., and were threatened with expulsion for their part in a rampage through the school's administrative offices.

Appeals are allowed and a spokesman said it was conceivable a student who appealed but lost would not be automatically expelled, but might be reinstated on a probationary basis.

Students continued occupying the University of Ottawa's social science faculty quarters. Initial negotiations between professors and students failed to settle disputes over student representation on departmental councils.

Pioneer Family's Son Served in First War

Funeral services will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday in Hayward's funeral home for John (Jack) Colin McRae, son of the pioneering McRae family which owned the McRae estate in Saanich.

Mr. McRae, 72, died Thursday after taking ill while returning to his home at 1445 Ocean View. He was the son of George McRae who came here from New Zealand in 1882 and made a home on the land which became the McRae Estate.

The estate lands were expropriated in 1967 for use as a park and recreational area, for a value of $1,200,000. The McRaes were allowed to keep their home on Ocean View, in the 132-acre plot which included the Cedar Hill Golf Course.

Mr. McRae spent all his life in Victoria except for a period of service with the Royal Flying Corps in the First World War. He and his brother George operated a trucking service.

He's survived by his brother George and two sons, John (Jack) Colin, manager of the Capitol Theatre, and George D. McRae, a nephew, John D. McRae of Bellevue, Wash.

Countrywide Unrest

Italy's Schools Latest Target

ROME (AP) — Angry student demonstrations spread across the country Friday as efforts to end Italy's government crisis hit a new snag in negotiations inside the church-backed Christian Democrat party.

Demanding an urgent overhaul of the high school system, students deserted classes to mob the centre of Turin, to clash with police in Naples and to march across the city in Rome.

WIDELY SPREAD

The growing student protests spread from north to south as President Giuseppe Saragat completed his first day of political consultations in an effort to solve the country's government crisis.

Saragat, seeking a new premier to put the old centre-left coalition together again, saw his efforts threatened by suspension of the Christian Democrat party council. A Friday night meeting with him was cancelled after party leaders spent a fruitless day in private talks.

LEADER QUIT

The party was thrown into uproar Thursday, when Marino Rumor, rated the likeliest candidate for premier, quit as leader of the party.

The high school student demonstrations came on the heels of a week of university student violence, marked by three bomb explosions and daily clashes in major cities from Sicily to the Alps.

More than 10,000 students cut classes at 25 high schools in the automobile manufacturing capital of Turin to press demands for cancelling all marks for conduct and for the right to expel any objectionable teacher.

In Naples, about 1,000 students protesting the lack of classroom space hit and shoved the deputy chief of police to the ground.

LABOR STRIKES

There has also been countrywide unrest and strikes by Italian labor unions.

Early Friday, home made bombs shattered two gasoline stations in Rome. Pump attendants have been agitating for higher wages.

In Sicily, staffs from all the island's hospitals walked off

Tips for Travellers

HAWAII — Aloha, brudda, worn out TOO much! We just did the eight-day tour of Hawaii. Into the sightseeing limousine. Out of the plane. Bags outside your door at 8 a.m. "Eight fun-packed days, seven glamorous nights," says the folder. Let me tell you, brudda, you no wastetime. Twenty holo holo everywhere. Your travelling companions are 53 other people who: Are twice as many women as men. Nine of 10 on their first trip to Hawaii. Half on their first airplane flight. Mostly 40 to 60 years.

It's fine if you can take the pace. Four islands. Three days in Waikiki. H-tels, except for one, were absolutely tops.

True, they keep you moving. And you MUST be on time for planes. But it's too much, you don't have to do all the sightseeing trips. Skip the morning run and flake out on the beach. ("That boy was not behind the door when the brains were passed out," said my grandma.)

I met a woman on the beach who was going it single. She found it a lonesome time in the Outer Islands. Lines should stay at Waikiki. You always meet someone on the beach there. People on our tour seemed to get together in the evenings for drinks or dinner. At the end of eight days, everybody knew each other and were full of aloha. I checked the costs. I think it would be at least $100 more going it alone. Now, the Hawaii tour people tell me very few people do a tour the second time. A Kona hotel man said: "They see just about everything there is to see on these tours. The second time, they've decided what places they like best, and they make their own tour."

"We will be on a sightseeing charter bus tour in Europe. Is it tomfory to tip the guide

New Park Created At Arrow

The provincial government says a new 375-acre park located five miles behind the High Arrow Dam has been created as the nucleus of a new park system along the Arrow Lakes.

The cabinet named the Class A property Syringa Park. It will be developed on Crown lands formerly held by B.C. Hydro for camping, picnicking and boat launching. Hydro and the highways department will co-operate on construction of an access road.

West Coast Trail

Elements Overcome By Arbutus Scouts

Through the air, over land and on the water the 3rd Arbutus Scout Troop followed the west coast lifesaving trail last summer.

Along the way the boys explored shipwrecks and Indian burial caves complete with skeletons.

At the start of the 56-mile hike each boy carried a pack about one-third his own weight which included about 10 pounds of food.

Fording the Klawawa River, crossing the Ninimat River by dugout canoe and walking a suspension bridge near the Tseacura River were a few of the obstacles overcome by the Scouts.

Preparation for the outing started in October, 1967. Some of the boys made their own aluminum packboards and all of them made polyethylene sheet tents.

Lt-Col John Cave, Greater Victoria Boy Scout Commissioner presented the Provincial Commissioner's Award to the troop, at View Royal Community Hall, Thursday.

Treasurer's Magic Works

From One Pocket And Into Another

Victoria Treasurer Jim Bramley showed Thursday how the city could save money simply by taking it out of one pocket and putting it in another.

City finance committee approved the move in which the city will take $100,000 from its surplus fund and put it in a local improvement fund.

The idea behind the move, as explained in a letter from Mr. Bramley, was this:

At present, local improvements are financed by small issues of debentures. These debentures are paid off over the years, partly by local improvement taxes levied on property-owners. But the administrative procedures involved are time-consuming and the city has to pay interest on temporary bank borrowings until debentures are sold.

FINANCE SHARE

Why not take half of the $200,000 the city holds in reserve and use it to finance the property-owners' share of local improvement costs, suggested Mr. Bramley.

He estimated that, by doing so, the city could start off 1968 with a local improvement construction fund of $41,000. Only $22,000 was spent for this purpose this year.

Finance committee agreed and the proposal now will go before council for consideration.

Mine Controversy Begins

Blasts, Fires Continue

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — New explosions and intense, uncontrolled flames in the deep tunnels of a coal mine delayed any prospect of rescuing 78 trapped men Friday as a controversy began over the mine's safety.

A devastating blast thundered across the big mine area early

John D Irate

Parents In Book Unjust

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker said Friday the description of his father and mother in the book Vision and Indecision is false and totally unjust.

The book by Ottawa columnist Patrick Nicholson said the former Conservative leader had a "dominant and domineering" mother who sometimes treated his father with savage scorn.

In their earlier years, she discounted him as an ineffective schoolmaster and in later years as "an indolent hypochondriac."

Diefenbaker said in an interview he does not understand how such libellous references could be made.

Diefenbaker said he did not mind personal criticism, but "to reach into the grave" in this fashion is wrong. It shocked people in Saskatchewan who knew his parents, now both dead.

He said Nicholson never met his father and might have met his mother briefly. Anybody who knew his parents would know Nicholson's description is unbelievable.

Diefenbaker said he quit reading the book at the page where the offending passage occurred. Nicholson had been advised of his views.

HONG KONG (AP) — Two Communist Chinese gunboats stopped and searched a Soviet freighter near Hong Kong last week, the Hong Kong Sing Tao Man Pao says.

Friday, blowing 26 tons of material used to seal one of the entrances.

There has been no contact with the 78 men, entombed when the first explosion ripped through Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 early Wednesday and left its passageways blazing. Another 21 men on the early shift managed to reach the surface—500 feet above—or were pulled to safety.

"We have no control of the fire," said Vice-President William Poundstone of Consolidation Coal Co., parent firm of Mountaineer. But he said "no, we are not" planning to seal the mine to smother the fire.

Such a move would also cut off oxygen to the trapped men, if they are still alive down in the mine's seared honeycombs.

LISTEN TO SPEAKER
Poundstone, federal officials and representatives of the United Mine Workers Union held a news conference. They met in the small storeroom of the company store where many of the miners buy food, furniture and other articles.

Dozens gathered outside and the news conference was piled to them on a loudspeaker system.

"The explosion put us back where we were yesterday," Poundstone said and added, "We have to assume that methane gas was involved."

At the mention of gas, several of the women broke out into uncontrollable sobs. Nurses administered sedatives to them.

WOULD HAVE STOPPED
"Get them out of there," one woman pleaded for her trapped husband and her cry was heard inside at the news conference.

Poundstone said recent tests showed the mine to be safe, and he was backed up by William Parks of the U.S. Bureau of Mines and Lewis B. Evans, safety director of the UMW.

An unsurpassed cast in one of the great plays of the ages!

Federal inspectors reported on the mine in August and Parks told reporters: "If the mine was unsafe, we would have stopped operations. That's all there is to it."

Evans said the report of the August inspection by bureau of mines "indicates very conclusively to me that the mine, at least when the federal inspectors left, was in safe condition."

But in Charleston, the Friday edition of the Charleston Daily Mail said federal and state inspectors found nearly identical violations of safety procedures in Mountaineer No. 9.

And on Thursday night, the Columbia Broadcasting Co. contended the mine had failed to pass tests during the August inspection.

The Daily Mail said any of the violations reported by bureau of mines and West Virginia department of mines inspectors could have led to a mine explosion.

The state officials inspected the mine in October, 1967, the newspaper said, and again last month, two months after the federal inspection.

In August, federal inspector

M. W. McManus's report, the Daily Mail said, noted applications of rock dust—used to minimize suspension of coal dust—were visibly inadequate.

West Virginia inspectors Walter Miller and John Ashcraft reported "the incombustible content to be substandard" with regard to rock-dusting.

Insofar as seeking the mine, union representative Evans told the news conference that "I want to make it very clear that this mine is not going to be sealed by any agreement until every possible effort has been explored to contact these men or to effect a recovery, whatever that might be."

A youth who led police on a 50 to 60 mile-an-hour chase through Esquimalt streets with his mother at his side, said Friday in Central Magistrates Court she hadn't tried to stop him.

"Is that because she was too frightened to speak?" asked a surprised Magistrate William Ostler.

"I couldn't tell you," said the youth, Paul R. Whitehead, 20, of 506 Gore.

Whitehead pleaded guilty to dangerous driving and was fined $250 or 30 days. His driving licence was ordered suspended for 18 months. In addition,

Courtroom Parade

Mom Shares Wild Ride

Magistrate Ostler placed him on a six-month good behavior bond and also ordered him to view the film, Mechanized Death, at the Saanich police station.

Evidence showed the chase began at 45 miles-an-hour on Esquimalt Road and increased to between 50 and 60 miles-an-hour before swinging through a network of other streets. It ended when the car stalled.

Chau managed to say in English that he was "very sorry" for what he had done. The seven sweaters and shirt were valued at $114, the other sweater and coat, at $31.

Stephen Chu Kin Sun, 19, of 1401 Hamilton, who arrived in Victoria three months ago from his native Hong Kong, pleaded guilty through an interpreter to the theft of seven sweaters and a shirt from Woodwards and possession of a stolen sweater and coat from The Bay.

Magistrate Ostler remanded him in custody to Nov. 29 for a probation report.

Gift Crocs Long in Tooth But Only in Press Release

Experts agree if anything is more frightening than a crocodile with teeth seven feet long it is two crocodiles with similar chinaware.

They are inclined to believe, however, that two crocodiles coming to B.C. as gifts from India will have seven-foot bodies when fully grown and much shorter teeth, despite a press release which reads in part:

"... but when they get their full growth each will be at least seven feet long with teeth to match."

The release is from the B.C. centennial committee and it points out that the three-month-old crocodiles—just 14 inches long—will arrive in Victoria early next month.

They are from the youth of India in appreciation for the mobile teaching van and electronic aids presented by students of B.C. as a $200,000 centennial project.

The crocodiles will be housed in the new provincial museum here until they begin to mature. It is expected they will then be moved to the zoo in Vancouver.

For, as everyone knows, it just wouldn't do to have two monsters with seven-foot teeth slithering around the provincial museum.

List of Candidates Boosted by Six

Two Greater Victoria school board candidates and four municipal candidates reported Friday their decisions to enter the Dec. 7 elections.

In Oak Bay, Ald. J. D. Watts who has served the municipality for eight years, filed nomination papers for re-election.

He said he believes planning throughout the entire regional district will be of prime importance in the near future.

"I want to see regional planning under the regional board, but with enough restrictions to preserve the autonomy of the small as well as the more powerful areas."

SECOND TERM

Esquimalt Ald. William Bell will make a bid for re-election. He has completed his first two-year term, and filed his papers Friday.

Mr. Bell believes that there will be changes in municipal government in the next few years because of regional problems.

Municipal representatives will have to give more time to have the area retain a degree of municipal autonomy while remaining progressively inclined, he said.

GROWING LIST

A lengthy slate of candidates is developing in Central Saanich, where one of the latest hopefuls is William Claydon, 1217 Mount Newton Cross Road.

A personnel administrative officer in the federal civil service he wants to see planned progress for the area, including increased co-operation with the neighboring municipalities, and extended recreational facilities for all ages.

The seventh candidate for an aldermanic seat on Saanich council — Gordon Campbell — filed Friday.

Mr. Campbell, brother of Ald. William Campbell, this week changed his mind about not running for election.

The proponent of land disposal of sewage said Friday night he had challenged Mayor Hugh Curtis to a public debate on sewage disposal "and his response was to the effect that I was only a frustrated candidate seeking personal publicity."

Mr. Campbell said he decided the only action to take, "if a fair and objective discussion was even to take place, was to attempt to win a council seat."

BOARD CANDIDATE

Daphne Temple, 1243 Richardson, announced Friday that she had taken out nomination papers for a seat on the Victoria school board.

A city housewife and long-time worker for education, she has tried previously for a seat on the all-male school board.

Already running is Alan McKinnon, 1780 Rockland, a city apartment operator and a teacher in Sooke school district. At stake is a seat being vacated by retiring trustee Ted Wood.

Mrs. Temple said she was started to visit Central junior high school Thursday and discover that it has an enrolment of 896 although it was designed to accommodate 540 pupils.

"They can't offer the courses they want to, for lack of space," said Mrs. Temple, who said she will work for more school space.

Joseph Richards who filed as a Victoria aldermanic candidate last week and was later disqualified, announced Friday that he would run for a Victoria school board seat.

Mr. Richards said that he had cleared up the matter of a business contract he had with the city and that he now was eligible to run for alderman but he had decided to stand instead for the school board.

Adult Donations Disappoint

Youth Effort Lauded

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Clare Copeland Friday boosted the young people of the area and took a swing at the adults. His subject was the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal.

"As you see, our young people are going to work on it," he said. "This could be a reminder to the adults to look at their giving and possibly upgrade it. In the case of those who gave nothing—well, maybe they'll reconsider."

CLEANUP CAMPAIGN

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal is still lagging at 85.6 per cent of its goal. This year's target is $655,000 and up to Friday only $560,371 had been paid or pledged.

Greater Victoria young people this week pitched in and formed a Mod Squad which is working on a cleanup campaign to bring

By IAN STREET

More than 500 civil servants carrying banners and signs marched from the Crystal Garden to the front steps of the legislative buildings shortly after noon Friday to protest the government's refusal to refer their salary dispute to the provincial mediation commission.

Perhaps a hundred or so more government employees attended the preliminary rally in the Crystal but officials said some were from public works and had only a 30-minute lunch break.

Others drifted away and didn't join the march.

TWO BEARERS

The procession up Belleville Street—led by a uniformed piper and two flagbearers carrying B.C. and Canadian flags—and officers of the sponsoring B.C. Government Employees Association, like the meeting which preceded it, was low-key and orderly.

Many of the marchers carried placards distributed to them by association officials bearing slogans like: "No Right to Bargain," "B.C. Government Workers Demand Social Justice," and "15 Years of Wage Bribe. Still to Meet Our Employers." One man carried aloft a banner which read "Pierre a Just Employer."

Speakers admitted the protest was designed to acquaint the public with their protest and outline employees' positions. One man even told marchers from the platform in the Crystal to "put on a good show for cameramen and Premier Bennett who might be peering out of his window."

When the marchers arrived at the front steps of the buildings there was no sign of the premier or any other government spokesman. It was later learned that Mr. Bennett had gone to lunch.

SALARY DISPUTE

Alec Brady, president of the Victoria branch of BCGEA, criticized the government for "completely ignoring" the association's appeal for its salary dispute to be referred to the mediation commission which assumes full powers in the labor relations field Dec. 2. It requires a cabinet order to refer the dispute.

"I ask you all to walk from here to the buildings and publicly display your attitude towards this treatment by our employers," Mr. Brady told the Crystal Garden meeting.

LOWER LEVEL

He then attacked the premier for earlier "irresponsible statements" and said it was "preposterous" to suggest as Mr. Bennett did Thursday that civil service wages here should be compared with those in other provinces with a generally lower wage level.

Mr. Brady also referred to the premier's remark about civil servants being the only ones in this province with guaranteed wages as "a lot of poppycock."

LITTLE DOUBT

"There is little doubt," he said, "that future generations will acknowledge the premier and give him his true place in the history of this province as a unique and colorful leader. But I don't feel that creation of a depressed and demoralized civil service is in the best interests of the people of B.C."

Mr. Brady paid tribute to the Civil Service Commission but said he wondered how its members felt when they had to meet resolutions passed at the BCGEA annual conventions with "half-hearted evasion."

BEST SERVICE

"I agree with Mr. Bennett that we have to have the best possible civil service for the lowest possible tax dollar. But sometimes real efficiency can't be measured only in dollars and cents."

The sole purpose of Friday's meetings here and in Vancouver, Mr. Brady said, was to "guide" the premier towards the establishment of the type of civil service "his advisers have convinced him already has."

The reference was apparently to a statement by Mr. Bennett Thursday that B.C. has the best civil service in Canada.

Mr. Brady said, "We like to be dignified and we want wages comparable to other industries in B.C., not to those in Outer Mongolia."

"If we achieve this aim we can develop the happiest, best trained and most efficient civil service any prime minister could ask for."

Sewer Costs

Unchecked Sprawl To Blame

What "fringe area" municipalities like Saanich complain of as the high cost of sewage treatment is really the result of bad planning which leads to suburban sprawl, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Friday.

People are often confused between the high cost of sewage services for a thinly-spread population and the actual cost of sewage treatment, the minister said.

He added: "Not infrequently municipal financial officers in fringe areas like Saanich and Delta find their difficulties arise from the way they have allowed construction to proceed in their municipalities. As the population is spread more thinly, sewage gathering costs increase."

On the other hand the cost of sewage treatment and collection decreases as the population of an area increases.

The minister said in an interview that his department is delaying a number of necessary health certificates for sewage extensions in Saanich and Delta because they involve servicing of newly-developed land and do not provide a schedule for treatment of sewage.

Applications Reviewed

Under a new policy announced Sept. 24 the health department is only issuing permits for sewage systems where treatment is provided, or reasonable assurance is given that it will be, or where the extension is necessary to serve a built-up area or one where land pollution exists.

A health department official said a number of Saanich applications have been referred to local health authorities to find out whether the sewer line extensions are required to eliminate existing land pollution.

Mr. Loffmark noted that the areas which have complained most about the new health department policy on sewage treatment are those where there is a "substantial amount of what could be called suburban sprawl."

He was asked how he would advise these municipalities to tackle their problem and replied: "They should spend the money on sewage treatment before they allow any more growth to take place."

Planner in Agreement

Saanich planner T. W. Loney said that he agrees with the health minister.

"I would say, however," Mr. Loney continued, "that in municipalities where a strong planning function exists, a high percentage of growth has been overcome in that not much of the new development is sprawl."

"The old development sprawl is not going to go away and it is still going to cause great demands for services which the municipality cannot afford."

Mr. Loney took issue with the health minister's suggestion that municipalities should spend money on sewage treatment before they allow any more growth to take place.

"On a regional basis, particularly, we can't just stop growth while we build sewers," Mr. Loney said. "I think the only realistic approach is to do exactly what Saanich has done—define an area which we are capable of sewerage and then get on with the job."

The municipality is getting along with the job, he said, and council will examine policies within the next month and make decisions which will determine the growth patterns of the future.

"It's difficult for us to come up with hard and fast recommendations as yet because we don't know the sewer timetable and it will be a while before we do."

"When it is more apparent what sort of timetable we're looking at, council will be stating policies and alternatives. I think our council has done what it could under the circumstances. The same situation exists in many parts of Canada."

Police Cadet Hurt During Downpour

A Victoria police cadet was injured while riding as a passenger in a police car that was stopped for a red light at Humbler Green at the height of a downpour Friday night.

Cadet John Nicholson Smith was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital at 6:05 p.m. with an injured neck after a car police said was driven by John Michael Shopa, 942 Tatterwall, collided with the police car driven by Constable Louis Pietz.

Police in the city were called to 13 accidents in less than three hours. There were two other injury accidents.

Thomas Watson, 74, of 1485

Fort Street, was in fair condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a leg fracture and head and face cuts after being hit by a car police said was driven by Sarah Ruth James, 599 Island Road, while crossing the street at Fairfield and St. Charles at 5:45 p.m. He is in fair condition.

Lucille Leberge, 19, of 1351 Merritt, and Linda Weston, 16, of 3131 Cedar Hill, were treated in Royal Jubilee for minor injuries and released after a two-car crash at Doncaster and Edgeware at 6:35 p.m. Police said the other car was driven by Ethel Brayshaw, 1331 Edgeware.

Esquimalt Chamber

San Diego Link Studied

A sister city project between Esquimalt and San Diego will likely be inaugurated by the Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce following a letter from Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant.

Mayor Bryant said he was pleased with the role the chamber was playing in the community particularly in the field of co-operation with municipal council.

"On many occasions I have been told by visiting natives of the similarities between the people and the community of San Diego and that of Esquimalt. This is rather obvious when one considers a mar-time community of interest that exists between the two areas.

"While I haven't discussed this with council I am sure if the chamber could initiate the project council would give consideration to supporting it."

Chamber president Ron Perry said while the letter had not been presented to the chamber at large he was sure after getting in touch with the San Diego chamber the project would get off the ground.

"I plan to present the letter to the next general meeting," he said.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers: I refuse to call you "Dear" because you make me sick. Who gave you the right to call housewives slob just because they appear in public wearing hair curlers? Not all women can afford to go to the beauty shop.

Some of us must wash and set our own hair and we have to do the marketing and daily household errands besides — so that means roll up the hair and go.

I couldn't care less what the druggist or the carry-out kid in the supermarket thinks of my looks. I am not out to impress anybody but my husband. When he comes home at night I want to look nice for him.

So why don't you stick to love-lorn problems and stay out of people's hair? — MADDER THAN HOPS IN HOUSTON.

Drop-Dead Tide Rises

Dear Houston Hops: Apparently I struck some raw nerves around the country. My drop-dead mail tripled this week.

The majority of the outraged housewives ignored, as you did, my criticism of short shorts and bra-less, haltered females who parade in public barefooted. It was the crack about the curlers that got the girls where they live.

My position remains unchanged, but there's a suggestion for you gals who must roll up your hair and go: For under $2 you can buy attractive roller berets that hide the hardware and add a touch of glamor.

The next letter might be of interest to you. Read on.

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for calling women who appear in public wearing hair curlers by their right name — slob. I live in Utica, N.Y. This city isn't San Francisco or Chicago, but it's not a summer resort either. I own a small shop in the business section. The chamber of commerce keeps urging us to make our shops as attractive as possible, but what good does it do when the customers look like something the cat was ashamed to drag in?

Even Cat Would Blanch

Nobody expects women to wear hats and gloves when they are shopping, but if they'd wear shoes and skirts instead of bikini tops, and if they'd leave those ugly aluminum and plastic curlers at home, it would help keep America beautiful.

Dear Ann Landers: I despise stool pigeons and I will never be one. But what goes on in this building is more than I can take.

My desk faces the back door. Every day I see employees walking out with typewriters, adding machines, chairs, plants from the reception room, framed pictures, wall clocks. Just name it. Yesterday someone walked out with a huge carton of toilet paper. I refuse to "sing" but I think it's lousy the way people steal from their employers. Any suggestions? — 20-20 VISION.

Dear 20-20: Write a signed letter to the management. Tell them what you told me. They can post a guard at the doors and put an end to the stealing.

Confidential to Desperate: He is mentally ill. If you don't recognize it, you are ill also.

VON Visiting Increases

Miss L. M. Randall, director, says a total of 2,278 visits were made by Victorian Order of Nurses during the past month.

Miss Randall gave her report at the recent board meeting of VON. She also pointed out that, compared to figures for last year, the number of admissions were the same but the number of visits for the entire year have increased by 2,180. In this year there was a higher percentage of visits made to medical and surgical cases and fewer visits to mothers and babies.

The director also reported meetings had been held with the medical directors of Royal Jubilee Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital and Gorge Road Hospital in an effort to improve the referral program from all three establishments.

Miss Randall also said she attended a meeting of the new executive committee for the administration of a home care program at the Jubilee.

Mrs. C. Simpson, president, told the board the VON had received an outstanding citizenship award for its contribution to the current United Appeal campaign. The award was presented at a campaign report meeting and attending were Mrs. Simpson, Miss Randall and Miss Betty Short.

The annual meeting will be held Feb. 13. A rummage sale has been planned for April 5 and those wishing to donate are asked to phone the VON office at 383-4134.

Arthritics Must Learn to Live with It

Education Eases Clutching Pain

By SUSAN PERENACK

Education is the newest approach to arthritis, one of the oldest diseases known to man.

"You have to learn to live with arthritis," says Mrs. Frank Baxter, head of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society clinic on Gorge Road. The society is a member of the Community Chest.

This may sound like soap opera to a person who never thinks about lifting a teapot, getting dressed or sitting down. But to a person with rheumatoid arthritis or osteoarthritis, these are major problems to be solved daily.

Elastic shoelaces, a long hooked stick for dressing and blocks to raise chairs and beds, a few of the gadgets displayed on the clinic's daily activity board emphasize this to a healthy, active person.

These simple things arthritic people have to learn to do over again.

"Daily mobility and dressing are main problems to be solved," Mrs. Baxter said. Naturally, high morale is important, too, because emotions play a leading role in any disease.

Group therapy helps both of these. Discussing their difficulties, patients realize they aren't the only ones with these problems.

Solutions to some of their difficulties are reached through discussion. Sometimes one person has the answer to another's problem.

As if to illustrate her point, the women's group which meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning, was having a coffee break after wax and heat treatments.

Most-discussed topic was the recent operation at Royal Jubilee Hospital restoring the use of hands crippled by rheumatoid arthritis.

The six women in the group had all had rheumatoid arthritis in their hands and feet from a period of five to 23 years.

"Wonderful," was the much-used adjective describing their reaction to the operation.

Laughing at her husband's suggestion she take up water painting, one woman turned to more practical matters, like gripping a broom handle.

Discussing the medication, surgery and therapy they had undergone over the years, they didn't seem hopeful of a cure for the disease.

Their outlook brightened, though when they talked about how much they had progressed after their treatment at the clinic. They felt good about things they could now do, like lifting an object which was impossible for some of them before.

"I'd have undergone one operation a few years ago," said Mrs. Kathleen Kennedy. Now she's not so sure, since her arthritis is under control.

Middle-aged women aren't the only visitors to the clinic. Young mothers and even teenagers have arthritis.

A seven-year-old girl made her first visit to the clinic when she was four, said the secretary, Mrs. Kristina Wetselaar.

Seven youngsters 11 to 15 years old have come to the clinic this year. Through medication and therapy, they have the disease under control.

"They won't get the awful deformities common with arthritis because they have learned to live with it," said Mrs. Baxter.

Paradoxically, arthritis in the joints makes movement painfully difficult, but exercise is necessary to control the disease and avoid deformities.

At the centre, treatments like hot wax, hot packs and electric wave treatment are used to relax the patient and prepare him for massages and exercise.

There are special hand and foot exercises which each patient does on his own.

Treatment doesn't end in the clinic. Donna Bishop, trained in both occupational and physical therapy, visits the patients in their homes.

She takes a tour of each home, assessing needs and deciding what aids will make daily living easier.

In the occupational workshop, Miss Bishop makes arm splints out of polyethylene for patients who use their hands a lot but have difficulty because of lack of support in their wrists.

Most common forms of arthritis treated at the clinic are rheumatoid, which attacks the cartilage in the joints, and osteo, affecting the bones.

The clinic will get $18,750 of its $49,003 budget this year from United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal.

Family doctors refer arthritic patients to the clinic. "It's just recently that many people knew the clinic existed," Mrs. Baxter said.

'Build Better U.S.'

Ocean-to-Ocean Farewell By First Lady

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon Johnson set out Friday on a four-day tour, a farewell journey from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to survey a "restless new America."

The first lady's "this is your country" trip takes her first to New Orleans, then to Cape Kennedy, Denver and California for dedication of Redwood National Park. On Monday she will end her 6,000-mile journey.

Before leaving Washington, a ceremony in which she and the president welcomed 54 "fellow Americans" — aliens who had been sworn in as U.S. citizens in a makeshift courtroom in the east room of the White House.

The new citizens, including an eight-year-old Filipino boy and a 72-year-old laundry worker from China, pledged allegiance to the United States before federal judge Matthew McGuire. With the president and Mrs. Johnson looking on, the white-haired jurist told them:

"This is the first time a ceremony of this kind has been held in this room and in this place so redolent with history where for five years a great president had labored so much for peace for this country and for all of mankind. History will remember."

Mrs. Johnson later told them: "I think I may now address you as fellow Americans, which you know is a familiar phrase around here. To each of you, my fellow Americans in this room — and to my fellow Americans around these United States — I ask one thing: let us join together; let us build together a better nation. Let us look at all the good things which have happened recently and vow to continue."

"That, I want to assure you, is exactly what two private citizens from Johnson City will be doing starting on Jan. 21."

Referring to her trip, the first lady said, "what we will see is not perfection. What we will see will be the restless beginnings of a people yearning to improve life in the United States."

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Nicholson will be at Patricia Bay Airport Monday morning to greet Governor-General and Mrs. Michener who will be in Victoria until Thursday.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Nicholson will give a dinner at Government House Monday evening for the Micheners.

The governor general and Mrs. Michener will attend the luncheon at the Empress Hotel Tuesday given by Premier Bennett and members of the cabinet and, in the evening, the lieutenant governor and Mrs. Nicholson will give a state dinner at Government House. Invitations have also been issued for a reception following the dinner.

Again Wednesday evening

Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson will give a dinner at Government House and on Thursday the Nicholsons will accompany the Micheners to Vancouver.

Some people certainly do get around. Like the Ralph Sykes, who are due back in Victoria today.

Back to New Zealand

From there they took a freighter to England where they have been visiting. Now they are on their way back to New Zealand via Victoria.

Pat and Di Chaworth-Musters are in Vancouver to meet the Sykes and they will all be back in Victoria later today for a party at the Chaworth-Musters and Mrs. June Taylor are giving at the latter's home on St. Charles.

Invited to the party are Mrs. Charles King and Mrs. H. M. Newton, Mrs. Sykes' mother and aunt, Gen. and Mrs. G. R. Peakes, Mrs. Joan Holmes, Mr. John Todd, Mrs. Peta Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Colin Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Pip Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. R. Cecilmarra, Mrs. Barbara Rankin, Col. A. W. K.

Flowers Fill Clubhouse

Robert Chaworth-Musters will be over from Vancouver for the party.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Dudley have been here from Vancouver for the week, guests at the Empress Hotel.

Flowers in autumn shades were a blaze of color in the Victoria Golf clubhouse Thursday evening for the ladies division annual dinner and prize giving.

The dining room looked beautiful with all yellow chrysanthemums on the tables and lighted yellow candles shedding a glow on the crystal and silver.

The dinner itself came as a pleasant surprise to most. All 108 members present agreed it was "the best."

Prizes Follow Dinner

The prize-giving followed the dinner. Winner of the Rossey Cup was Mrs. H. Morrow with Mrs. E. C. D. Wilson as runner-up.

The Louise Todd Cup was won by Mrs. J. Wintemute, with Mrs. C. Mann as runner-up. The M. Todd Foursome was won by Mrs. E. Keyes and Miss Mary Ertton, with Mrs. J. D. Munro and Mrs. K. B. Olson as runners-up.

Mrs. J. H. Todd was both winner and medalist in the Club Championship. Runner-up was Mrs. H. G. Meares.

Bronze A Championship medalist was Mrs. J. L. Rimmington. Winner was Miss Marjorie Price, with Mrs. J. L. Rimmington as runner-up. First flight winner was Mrs. D. W. Stoneham and runner-up was Mrs. T. Link. Medalist and winner in the Challenge ladder winners were Mrs. R. McDonald and Mrs. C. W. Shearing.

Five Arrange Flowers

Winners of National Golf Week were: A division, Mrs. J. D. Munro, with Mrs. E. G. D. Wilson as runner-up; B division, Mrs. J. Wintemute, with Mrs. D. Boyd, runner-up; Nora Paterson Day winners were Mrs. D. Boyd and Mrs. P. McCullough; Mrs. V. Godfrey and Mrs. W. Munro and Mrs. E. C. D. Wilson and Mrs. M. Goodland.

All the lovely flower arrangements were the work of Madge Macdonald, Mary Norris, Phyllis Meares, Dalma Mann and Pega Hubbard.

When Lillian Smith was here Friday to tell me about the visit of Mrs. Gordon Hitchcock of Vancouver, educational secretary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, she told me this group is the oldest women's organization in Victoria. Something I didn't know before.

It seems that Frances Willard, U.S. educator and reformer, who organized the World Temperance Union in 1883, came here in August of that year to form a group. She stayed with Mrs. David Spencer.

Mrs. Hitchcock will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Newland Phillips, 2595 Cook

Jet Set Mother of Three

Short on Hemline Long on Ability

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — "Legs are terribly important," says Mrs. John Mosler, and she doesn't mean just for walking.

"The mini skirt has been a great thing," goes on Mrs. Mosler, who is small and blonde and has the notorious working title of special assistant to the commissioner of the state division of human rights. "People look at a girl in a mini skirt. They smile and relax and think she can't possibly have a brain in her head."

That's the way Sheila Mosler manages to fool some of the people some of the time. She has plenty of brains in hers, though she wears short skirts, lives in one of the loveliest apartments on Grace Square, and has her name on some of the society patroness lists.

Actually she's not on too many lists. She has a thing about not lending her name unless she really participates. At one time she was a member of 15 charity committees, but now she had narrowed down to just three.

Her day is full of committee meetings, appointments with Senators and corporation heads. The main drive of her committee is to place members of minority groups wherever they can. Often she doesn't finish work before 9 p.m.

"When I first started working, people looked at me and said, 'She's got to be kidding. It can't be for real.' I've earned their respect by staying late," she says.

Maybe, she admits, she drives herself hard, because her father, George Sanders, was such a tireless go-getter. He organized the Manhattan Day Line and invented the cruise around the city. "Onassis had nothing on him."

Critics often claim that Sheila doesn't spend enough time with her home, her industrialist husband, and three children — two boys under ten and a daughter, Michele Andre, who is only a year-and-a-half old.

"It isn't true," she says. "I have more to interest them, and they have more respect for me."

Her weekends are all strictly family times. "We're big on physical activities. We're always participating." They are building a new house on 14 acres in East Hampton. What they say about the busiest people having the most time certainly comes true for Sheila Mosler. Every three months, at least, she gives a dinner for 100 in their own apartment.

A graduate of Finch with an honorary doctorate from St. John's, Sheila Mosler isn't quite 30 yet. She is planning to keep all her jobs. "It's possible to work and still be a girl. Women who don't want to be are in trouble." Her ideal is Ethel Kennedy with star attention for Mrs. John Loeb and for Charlotte Niarchos as a committee worker.

Cerousel, a weekly tabloid, appeared on news stands to answer female dissatisfaction with the way other publications are covering women's news.

A Lovelier You

Belts Accent Big Hips

By MARY SUE MILLER

A girl writes: "When I wear my new belted dresses, my hips look much too heavy. Actually, they measure 14 inches more than my waistline. Please tell me what the correct proportions are, and how to achieve them."

The answer: As many lovelies are discovering, snug belts accent any sort of imbalance either above or below. As for hip measurements:

Ideally, hips should measure 10 inches more than a normal waistline. A successful method for reducing the hip line is via spot exercise unless, of course, you are generally overweight. Then you must add a slimming diet to exercise. Two quick hip trimmers:

● Stretch out, back down, on floor; extend arms at shoulder level and raise legs perpendicular to floor. As legs swing up, centre weight on topmost section of hips. Now rotate legs, as though pedalling a bike, but with this difference... try to touch ceiling with toes, and chest with knees. The idea is to massage old high-hips, not to wear down legs. Work for one minute.

● Sit on hard chair or stool, pull up tall, and centre weight squarely on "sitting"

Every Woman May Now Quickly

Lift Her Face Out Of Winter Lines, Wrinkles and Aging Dryness

...thanks to the "European Discovery" CEF-600

Helps Every Complexion Regain and Retain The Younger Look by Immediately Counteracting Effects of Winter's Icy Grip

No matter if your skin is typed dry, normal or even oily... no matter whether you enjoy being outdoors or prefer indoor protection... both frigid arctic air and overcast dry rooms dehydrate, drain skin of water and deprive it of the necessary moisture that pushes skin up and out to keep it as smooth, firm and wrinkle-free as the day you were married. And now, during the social season, when you particularly want to look your youngest best, "old man winter" works overtime to dry out and make your skin on face and neck flabby, sagging, rough, chapped and weatherbeaten. You look and feel years older than your age. And your husband... he makes him feel older too!

Your Chance for a Quicker Winter Youth

Medical journals have acclaimed the "European Discovery" known scientifically as CEF-600 and now embodied as the active ingredient in the cosmetic-like lotion named "2ND DEBUT." Apply "2ND DEBUT" nightly before retiring and daily before make-up. Day and night, it is constantly carrying water into the skin... counteracting all the skin drying effects of outside cold and inside over-heating that chaps, dries, wrinkles your skin and makes it sag.

How 2ND DEBUT Works Quickly

Once again skin is moisturized, fresh, dewy radiant. Once again those aging lines and wrinkles are pushed up and out. Once again skin on face and throat is smoother and years younger in appearance. No matter how weather beaten your complexion may be, a youth-like color glows from within. Your complexion seems to have been born beautiful. Only 2ND DEBUT can bring about this fantastic skin youthifying miracle... in spite of winter's drying action!

For Extra Dry Skin—Or Mi-Lady In A Hurry—2ND DEBUT With Double Strength CEF 1200 New DOUBLE STRENGTH 2ND DEBUT contains CEF 1200 instead of CEF 600. It acts much faster to smooth and soften skin made scaly by winter's icy grip... and it works quicker to push up and out the more deeply seated lines and wrinkles.

Rescue operation went smoothly as practice in fog-shrouded bay

Big Splash Minus Crash

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A jetliner with 107 persons aboard splashed down in fog-shrouded San Francisco Bay Friday morning on the approach to the

Impairment

Magistrate Hailed For Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney General Leslie Peterson Thursday commended Penitentiary magistrate Ross Colver for his plan to sentence impaired drivers to attend a driving safety program.

Mr. Peterson said he would not mind if other magistrates adopted the same policy. "I think this can be an effective method of dealing with the impaired driving problem," he said.

INTERESTED

He said his department would watch with interest how the system progressed. Magistrate Colver said earlier that heavy fines caused hardship to the entire family of an impaired driver. Seeing alcohol education films and hearing lectures might have more effect on the convicted driver.

Mr. Peterson said: "The magistrate has studied the problem statistically and he has an obvious desire to promote safer driving habits and to prevent recurrence by offenders."

Ferry Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alcan has ordered a 36-passenger, aluminum ferry for the Kitimat-Kemano run. The new ship will be built in Vancouver.

airport. Within minutes the passengers and crew escaped safely with nothing more serious than wet feet.

The Japan Air Lines DC-8 hit in shallow water three miles south of San Francisco International Airport while attempting an instrument landing on a flight from Tokyo.

LITTLE PANIC

There was little panic among the 86 passengers and crew of 11. Six of the passengers were children.

For the pilot of the 100-ton jet, Kohhei Aoki, it was a case of the airport not being there. When the plane broke through the fog all he could see was water.

With a quick thrust on the throttle the pilot tried to bring the plane up, but it already was in the water at a speed of 150 miles an hour.

ON MUDFLAT

After the splashdown, the crew quickly inflated five yellow rubber lifeboats and paddled the passengers ashore at scenic Coyote Point. The jetliner came to a halt nose-up 350 feet from a yacht harbor on a mudflat type reef.

The plane settled in seven feet of water. The pilot returned later to recover personal belongings of the passengers and crew from cooling racks.

LUGGAGE RESCUED

By nightfall, airline crews were permitted to enter the craft. They tore up the floor to remove the luggage from belly compartments.

Aoki said he had made more than 100 landings in San Francisco in the past 10 years. Aoki said he had no indication from the airport control tower "that we were off course." The crash came seconds after the plane vanished from the radar screen.

NO FATALITIES

JAL flies 23,000,000 miles a year and has had no fatalities since it was formed in 1954. Vice president Shigeo Kamada said a salvage firm would remove the plane after federal authorities complete an investigation.

For busy San Francisco International Airport, where planes land or take off on the average of every two minutes, it was the first major mishap since 1966 when a jetliner lost an engine. Although dramatically averted, the plane managed an emergency landing safely at nearby Travis Air Force Base.

The last fatal airliner crash here occurred in the closing weeks of the Second World War when a navy transport plunged into the bay, killing 24 persons.

Crewmen Put Out Blaze On B.C.-Bound Vessel

HONOLULU (AP) — A fire on the survivors aboard the Surrey Trader, a British freighter, broke out Wednesday and was put out by a crew member. The vessel was en route to Vancouver with a cargo of meat and cotton when the fire broke out.

Two men who disappeared as the crew of the West German freighter Cap Colorado abandoned ship when the blaze broke out Wednesday remained missing Friday, the coast guard said. But a spokesman said early reports that a third crew member had been crushed to death as he abandoned ship were erroneous and that he was among the survivors.

Eight crew members remained aboard the freighter and battled the blaze for more than 30 hours before extinguishing it, reports said. They were not identified, nor were the survivors and the missing crew members.

A passing British freighter, the Surrey Trader, transferred a radio transmitter and four days of food to the eight men aboard the stricken ship, which had been en route to Vancouver with a cargo of meat and cotton when the fire broke out.

The Surrey Trader and an unidentified ship were standing by the Cap Colorado to attempt to remove the remaining men.

Initial efforts failed, the coast guard said, because the crews were unable to lower lifeboats in the 15-foot waves. The water calmed slightly early Friday and sea swells were about 10 feet.

The Honolulu agent for the stricken ship, Hawaii Freight Line, Inc., planned to send a tugboat to take the Cap Colorado in tow.

The Cap Colorado is owned by Columbus Line, Hamburg, West Germany, and was due to reach Vancouver on Monday or Tuesday.

Shabby Docks Cruise Call Threat

By A. H. MURPHY

Three cruise lines have scheduled Victoria as part of last, in the opinion of George call next summer but if Ogden Farmer.

Indian Conference Opens Here Today

Two federal cabinet ministers are expected at a four-day conference of more than 200 B.C. Indian delegates that opens today in Victoria.

Chief Philip Paul of the Tsartlip Band at Brentwood Bay, a spokesman for British Columbia's 45,000 native Indians, said he expected that Jean Chretien, Indian affairs and northern development minister, would attend along with Jack Davis, fisheries minister.

The meeting will be opened at 10 a.m. in the new provincial museum auditorium by Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria.

Chief Paul said almost any topic could be raised at the conference which will take place today through Tuesday, but that the two principal subjects planned for discussion were Indians' fishing rights and housing.

Special licensing rights for Indians in the matter of fishing would be the principal topic under discussion, the chief said, as would housing in and off the reservation. These, he said, were matters of prime importance to British Columbia native Indians at the moment and he expected both would be thoroughly combed over.

The chairman of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce harbor and transportation committee said Friday that he was greatly upset about the lack of action in the rehabilitation of Ogden Point.

"We have been working on this question for years and I'm afraid we're not getting very far. It's a question of vital importance to the city, and Victoria, as a port, will die on the vine if something isn't done to improve facilities for shipping," Mr. Farmer said.

At a recent meeting of his committee he noted that Matson Lines, American President Lines and Princess Cruises incorporated had all scheduled stops for resort vessels at Victoria in 1969.

"This could be the beginning of something of real value to the city," Mr. Farmer said.

The whole business of cruise-ship lay-overs was highly competitive, Mr. Farmer added, and Victoria had to have some sort of decent facilities to offer if it was to be in the running.

The decline of shipping at the outer wharves has been a matter of concern to the chamber of commerce for years. Mr. Farmer has been in the forefront of the battle to have the Canadian National Railway, which has nominal control of the area, do something to deepen the shipping berths and raze some of the outdated warehouses to make more room for lumber stockpiling.

A report considered by the harbor and transportation committee at a recent meeting observed that with larger tonnage ships now in operation more space was needed to stockpile lumber.

One old building was removed and some blacktopping done but there was much more to be done if Victoria is going to survive as a port.

The port of Victoria is used by grain interests but its main function is the movement of lumber.

Meanwhile, it has been announced that Canadian National Railway has awarded a contract to Old Country Industrial Contracting Ltd. to paint the exterior of freight shed "A" at Ogden Point.

Cadieux to Attend Advisory Session

National Defence Minister Leo Cadieux will arrive at Patricia Bay Airport at 8 p.m. Tuesday to attend the 11th meeting Wednesday and Thursday of the Canadian Military College Advisory Board at Royal Roads.

The board is composed of 12

members representing the provinces with two members each for Ontario and Quebec and four members representing the ex-cadet clubs of the three colleges.

The board advises the national defence minister on all matters pertaining to the three military colleges in Canada.

Smiling Portrait Often Conceals Growing Ills

The four of them make up the type of family you might expect to see on a poster depicting a happy Christmas.

The parents appear reasonably handsome and healthy. They are in their late 20s.

The children are four and two years of age and could very easily win you over with their ways.

However, you can forget the poster. And as far as the young father is concerned, you can forget the happy Christmas.

Social workers say the father has an emotional problem. He can't seem to cope with many of life's demands. Over the past few years he has found it increasingly difficult to hold a job. As a result, the debts continue to pile up.

"It has reached the point where something like Christmas becomes an insurmountable obstacle to this man," a social worker said.

This, then is a family with hidden scars for whom Christmas holds little hope. There are many more of them.

For many the word Christmas brings bitter thoughts. But where the children are concerned there is nearly always hope. And when that hope is not fulfilled there is disappointment. For children do not always understand.

Christmas Day can be made just a little bit more enjoyable for some of these unfortunate people by the Colonist 500 Fund.

By Friday contributions totalled $2,512 — still far short of last year's record total of more than $17,000.

The money is distributed to 500 Greater Victoria families selected by the Christmas Bureau.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas. Downtown shoppers can take contributions to Avis-Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas.

PARIS — Devaluation of the French franc appeared imminent Friday night after the leading industrial countries of the non-communist world agreed to give France a huge loan and Britain imposed stiff extra taxes and import curbs to meet the world monetary crisis.

Accused Carries Day

CHICAGO (Reuters)—Eddie Louis, accused of trespassing, took a dive into the cold, filthy waters of the Chicago River Friday instead of appearing in court. He emerged a hero.

The 22-year-old window cleaner was on his way to court when he spotted Hilaria Santiago, 31, in the river. Shedding his shoes and jacket, Louis plunged in and held up the drowning man until a fire department rescue squad arrived.

Louis eventually got to court in borrowed clothing to hear Judge Maurice Lee say: "We need more people like you."

Louis, arrested after leaving the property of a car company where a theft occurred two weeks ago, was promptly granted an adjournment of his case until Jan. 15.

A communiqué at the end of a tense three-day conference in Bonn, West Germany, of finance ministers and central bankers said the "Group of 10" countries — which include Canada — will extend to France a credit of $2,000,000,000.

It said they also decided on other measures to restore international financial stability.

NEW SQUEEZE

Britain quickly announced a massive new squeeze to cut consumer spending and slash imports in an effort to ward off international attacks on the pound.

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, said there is no question of devaluing the pound. The West German mark will not be revalued upwards despite pressure on the Bonn government for this. West Germany during the conference made tax changes to re-align imports and exports and cut its trade surplus, and moved to halt the inflow of speculative money.

EMERGENCY MEETING

President de Gaulle called an emergency session of the French cabinet for today for a final decision on the franc.

Reuters news agency quoted informed sources in Paris as saying France had offered to devalue the franc.

The sources were reported as saying an offer for a devaluation of less than 10 per cent was made at the Bonn conference by Finance Minister Francois-Xavier Ortoli as part of an international operation to avert world monetary chaos.

NOT ENOUGH

Financial opinion generally was that the new credits to France would not be enough by themselves to save the franc which was under heavy speculative pressure before exchange markets were ordered closed earlier this week. There was some criticism of the failure to upgrade the West German mark against weaker currencies.

The need for some change of parity to restore confidence was

Inside Story

Boredom Litter And Che

Strand

Canadian Press staff writer Norman Gidney was the first non-university journalist to get inside Simon Fraser University's administration building since students occupied it Wednesday night. Following is his report.

By NORMAN GIDNEY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The militant Students for a Democratic University have their own battle flag hoisted on a wall in Simon Fraser University's occupied administration building.

It's a stark black portrait of the late Cuban revolutionary leader Che Guevara, confronted against a solid red cloth background 18 inches high and 30 inches long.

EASY ENTRANCE

Getting into the administration building, atop Burnaby Mountain was a relatively easy matter. I went unchallenged with one of the regular Friday afternoon shifts — 10 minutes each hour are set aside for students wanting to get in and those wanting to get out.

The SDSU students took over the building Wednesday night, but the interior was generally undamaged though littered in some areas with papers and other trash.

CO-ED EXHAUSTED

A young co-ed, exhausted by two days and two nights of meetings, strategy sessions and just plain boredom, was sleeping in one of the halls, her hair tousled, her eye makeup streaked.

A communal kitchen is set up in the staff lunchroom.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Strand, acting president of Simon Fraser University, Friday refused to negotiate a settlement with militant students who have occupied SFU's administration building since Wednesday night.

Dr. Strand told a rally of about 2,000 students in the SFU mall that an impasse exists between the administration and a group of about 150 students, for the most part members of the radical Students for a Democratic University.

He said the group wants to negotiate with the university on four demands: reform of admissions practices, interchange of credits among universities, opening of administration files to students and more money for higher education.

NOT NEGOTIABLE

"This is not negotiable," Dr. Strand told the students. The situation remained stale-mated Friday afternoon. The students vowed they would retain possession of the administration building until their demands are met.

Later in the day, activist leaders held a rally of their own, attended by about 300 students. They issued a statement saying they're ready and willing to bargain at any time with the administration or senate on the four demands.

SEVERAL HOURS

Dr. Strand spent the night and several hours early Friday morning negotiating with the students in the building. He said he felt nothing was accomplished, but both sides emerged with a better understanding of each other's positions.

"I consider the issue of admissions very important," said the acting president. "I consider the occupation of the building an illegitimate means."

NO ACTION

In Victoria, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the provincial government does not plan to take any action against the students inside the building at this time.

"The matter is being handled by the university itself for the moment," said Mr. Peterson. So far, there has been no suggestion that police might be used to clear the administration building.

Classes for the 5,800 SFU students have continued on a more-or-less regular basis,

Pact Near

Quebec Liquor To Flow

MONTREAL (CP)—Raymond Parent, chief negotiator for 3,000 Quebec Liquor Board employees on strike since June 26, said Friday night liquor stores in the province may open "sometime Monday morning."

Parent, general secretary of the Confederation of National Trade Unions who bargains on behalf of the liquor board employees, said the end of the strike could come Sunday when workers will be asked to ratify proposed wage agreements giving store employees and warehouse workers average weekly increases of $22 and $26 respectively.

$83 AVERAGE

Prior to the strike, store employees earned an average of $83 weekly and warehouse workers earned an average $80 weekly.

"Under this agreement, the original government offer of a 15-per-cent increase would become more like 26 or 27 per cent," Parent said.

Montreal Bomb Danger

Shoppers Shooed to Safety

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of shoppers, estimated at more than 4,000, were evacuated from the downtown T. Eaton Co. department store just before supper hour Friday night following telephone bomb threats.

Police said four sticks of dynamite were found in the main floor jewelry department, and the search was being enlarged to include any suspicious packages in the store.

The downtown store was closed Friday night but was to open again today. Eaton's suburban stores in Pointe Claire and Ville d'Ajou and a warehouse store stayed open Friday night.

TWO HURT

Early in the day a bomb exploded in a basement locker provided for shoppers in the same store. It caused about $2,000 in damages and injured two cleaning workers.

Store executives decided to evacuate shoppers and allow police to make a thorough search of the premises in response to three or four telephone calls warning that bombs had been planted in the store.

Police said a man called the St. Catherine Street department store shortly before 8 p.m. EST Thursday and said a bomb had been placed in the building. Several policemen scoured the building for almost an hour but failed to find anything.

THIRD BLAST

The blast went off at 3:40 a.m., the third explosion in Montreal within 36 hours.

Sgt. Robert Cote, head of the Montreal police bomb squad, said after sifting through the debris that the fragments found at the store resembled those found at a Quebec Liquor Board store in north-central Montreal, damaged by a bomb explosion early Thursday.

Just a few hours before the blast Thursday, a fire-bomb—a gasoline-filled beer bottle—was thrown into a snowbank at the side of the home of Gerard Dechenes of suburban Pointe-aux-Trembles.

School Life Needs Variety

Public schools should develop children emotionally, not just intellectually, University of Victoria education professor Dr. Vance Peavy said this week.

Schools at all levels over-emphasize intellectual achievement, Dr. Peavy told the Kiwanis Club of Victoria at the Empress Hotel.

He said the traditional narrow view of education excluded consideration of the child as a person.

The source of emotional strength are breaking down in today's society, Dr. Peavy told the Kiwanis. People change jobs, marriage partners, homes and their roots in society are shallower.

He predicted increasing anti-social behavior.

Group discussions and dramatics in school to help people express themselves and understand others would counter the trend, he asserted.

With more involvement in human values, students would become increasingly self-confident, self-respecting and understanding of others, said the professor.

"What a person gets out of school depends more on his emotional attitude to it than on intellectual capacity," said Dr. Peavy.

Vickers, Mann and model

Existing Church Pieces Will Be Grafted to New

St. Philip's Anglican Church building project is about to enter its second stage — the moving of its present church from Eastdowne and Nell and its renovations on three acres of property between the extension of Wessex Avenue and Ford Bay Road.

First stage of the project was the purchase of the three acres which will accommodate three buildings in a three-to-five-year plan.

Tenders will soon be called for the present phase. It will entail the use of components of the existing church but the new building will be larger and has been re-designed with better facilities.

It will be used for Sunday services, for Christian education for the young people and by various organizations in need of meeting places.

When the third phase of the project begins, this structure will be converted into an activity building, large enough on the main floor for basketball or three badminton courts.

Rev. John Vickers said this week he hoped the new building will be ready by next Easter. Temporary facilities are being located for the estimated three-month period construction before that date, when the present building will have been dismantled.

In the third stage, a new and permanent circular church will be built. The fourth stage consists of further rooms for Christian education built around an open landscaped circular park.

The building fund committee is calling on members to support the new program.

William Mann, chairman of the committee, said the new church will be quite different to the present one, which he considers "a bit quaint."

A model of the new complex has been prepared by the architects, Campbell and Smeeth. Mr. Vickers and Mr. Mann were at the present church this week with Dr. Kenneth MacLure, another committee member, inspecting the model.

Thomas More Centre Succeeds

Soft Talk Ending Sock

By LYNNE WALLER

Socking it to them lecture style at the University of Victoria is giving way in some cases to the soft sell of seminar and discussion groups.

And in the search for congenial locations to hold these learning-oriented talkfestis some faculty members are turning to such off-campus locations as the Thomas More Centre on Gordon Head Road.

The centre, now in its second year of operation, is owned by the Roman Catholic Church and run as a kind of communications centre for the community with particular emphasis on the university.

Father Patrick Ratchford, resident priest, says the purpose of the centre is not to provide ready-made programs for an exclusive group of people to accept or reject, but rather to offer members of the community a neutral and informal ground for the exchange of ideas.

Sean Virgo, an English instructor at the university, is one of several faculty members making use of the centre for courses where discussion is perhaps a more important part of the learning process than the lecture.

He teaches a second-year course in contemporary literature to more than 60 students and said the mere size of the centre produced any meaningful exchange of ideas. Last year he used the centre occasionally but this year is using it exclusively for this one class.

The seminar, he said, is used a great deal for higher level courses in English but, although class discussion is encouraged, has not been as common in first and second year courses.

He said that "simply the atmosphere" of the large old house has made "an amazing difference" in the interest and response of his students to this class.

"We tend to underestimate

the effect of the physical structure of a class on students," he said.

Splitting his class into four discussion groups he gets away from what he terms playing the part of a "god figure" and leaves the students largely on their own. He said that, away from the more formal classroom structure of the university, students are better able to articulate.

ROOMS TOO SMALL

Philosophy instructor Richard Martin meets at the centre once a week with a third-year Aesthetics class to discuss films. He said he doesn't make use of available space at the University because "the small rooms are rather inhibiting."

He explained, "At the University there is very little feel that it is a functioning organism. It seems to close down at 5 p.m. and there is not much spirit of community."

CHANCE TO SPEAK

"Thomas More Centre," he said, "has a character of its own. The traditional professor-student relationship is broken down and students have the feeling that if they have something valuable to say they will get a chance in this situation."

Dr. Alan Gowans, chairman of the division of art history, is starting to use the centre as a supplement to lectures in an art history course with an enrolment of 375 — a situation where class discussion is next to impossible.

FEW AT FIRST

His arrangement is that if students want to come and talk to him about history he will be available at the centre one evening a week. On the first run only two students showed up, but, he said, "Those were two students I got to know that I wouldn't have ordinarily."

All agreed the lecture is necessary for courses which involve the pure dissemination of information but that the seminar is superior in situation where ideas are being dealt with in an interpretive fashion.

FOR HIMSELF

Sociologist Dr. C. R. Pope, on the faculty at the University, explained that the particular value of the seminar or discussion group lies in the fact the student is participating in the exchange of ideas and is not just one member of an audience. He has a stake in the proceedings and with the interaction of others can develop the ability to think for himself.

Dr. Pope stressed the importance of having a relatively small group and a good atmosphere in the place it meets, saying that in an informal situation a student is less likely to feel threatened in his discussion by structures of authority.

FILM FESTIVAL

The current wave of interest in films is also being exhibited at the centre by a "New Film Festival" due to end Dec. 6. The festival has featured such works as "The Godfather Part II" and "The Day After Tomorrow" as a capstone of the festival.

What My Religion Means to Me

Calvary Source of Stability Missing in Material Riches

By PETER GROOTENDORST

(Mr. Grootendorst, a furniture salesman, is a member of the First Christian Reformed Church of Victoria.)
I know that the Lord has paid for my sins and shortcomings through his death on Calvary.

This wonderful knowledge makes life rich and meaningful. It gives a stability that is not to be found anywhere else, neither in money, honor, health or whatever there may be. Nothing can take the place of knowing that you belong to the Lord.

At all times a follower of Christ wants to do the will of God. At his work, in his home life, or on holidays the Christian follows Christ.

For a Christian, times may become very difficult but he knows whatever it may be, God will help him.

So often we see the frailty of foundations of people who build on this life's treasures. They make gold, silver, job security or materialism the

and do my best. What more can I do?"
For a Christian who knows he is a sinner, it means not only that he does not steal or kill but that he shall love "the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, with all thy mind and with all thy strength."

This is the first and great commandment taught to us by God. The second commandment is "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

From this we can see how very difficult it is not to be a sinner — yes, it is impossible not to be a sinner.

God created man for His own glory. Therefore, man is to live entirely for the glory and honor of God.

Man was to be God's representative on this earth and to dwell in communion with God. Man was meant to be the lord of this universe but always to glorify God.

Any time we fall short of this we sin. A Christian needs Christ as his Saviour.

Give a man a fish and he eats for a day. Teach a man to fish and he eats for life.

This is an illustration of the motto of the YM-YWCA Service. Helping Others to Help Themselves is the motto and it works in Ecuador, where Indians are learning to read and write.

It works in Jerusalem, where refugees are learning a trade. It works in Zambia, where women are learning to augment the meagre family income by selling crafts of their own making.

This worldwide program, with grassroots support, receives upwards of $2,000 each year from Victoria Y members. This year's campaign will be highlighted by a Christmas concert in Metropolitan United Church at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 15.

Island Company

Work Stops
At Five Plants

COURTENAY — About 20 hourly-rated workers in Nanaimo, Campbell River, Kelsey Bay and Port Alice, five plants of Island Ready Mix Ltd. went on strike Friday morning over a contract dispute.

F. Barry Lindsay, manager of the workers, members of the Island Ready Mix at the Courtenay heavy construction local 213 of the Teamsters' Union, are on company has declined to sign a union-proposed agreement with the local based on Mainland and Vancouver conditions.

He said clauses in this new contract would "restrain our normal methods of business" under Island conditions.

Mr. Lindsay said the company had made an offer of a 30 cents across the board increase to the local but had received no reply.

"SAME INCREASE"

The pay increase in the union-proposed agreement was the same, he said.

He said pickets have been set up at several of the plants and all company operations have stopped.

A union spokesman said the union is seeking 10 cents an hour more for mixer truck operators and five cents an hour more for dump truck operators in addition to the 30 cents increase offered by the company.

BENEFIT RANGE

He said the agreement proposed by the union includes a range of benefits received by Vancouver and other Nanaimo workers in the same industry.

Basic rate under the old contract, he said, ranges from $3.26 an hour for truck drivers to $3.40 for mechanics.

Plans Begin
For First Term

NANAIMO—Work has started on selecting courses for Malaspina College's first term next September, said Dr. Roy MacMillan, curriculum committee chairman, on Thursday.

He said several possibilities for source material have been investigated.

In technical and career courses, he said, the committee has consulted with the Registered Nurses Association.

The forest industry has been contacted to establish related technological courses such as forestry and pulp processing, while various other areas such as pre-engineering, business administration, hospital lab, technicians, journalism and creative writing are also being investigated.

Dr. MacMillan said the federal biological station in Nanaimo has been contacted for information on fisheries and biological technology. Other approaches have been made to various labor organizations, chamber of commerce, and fish and game associations.

He added that university transfer programs are being arranged with the four provincial universities, and B.C. Institute of Technology has offered to set up programs for transfer credits.

"The college will welcome suggestions from groups and individuals on any program we could investigate for inclusion in our curriculum," said Dr. MacMillan. "Contact may be made with our staff at the college council offices, 460 Wallace Street, Nanaimo."

He said that information will be turned over to Dr. George Wootton, college president, who, with his staff, would be responsible for detailed planning.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union served a 48-hour notice Friday on Crane Canada Ltd., in a contract dispute affecting operations in Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo, Prince George and Kamloops.

Union representative John Squire said the notice follows a government-supervised vote in which employees sanctioned strike action.

The union seeks a 60-cent hourly increase on rates ranging from $2.45 to $2.81. The last agreement expired Aug. 1.

ISLAND SCENE

Pensioners Arrange Open House

The Old Age Pensioners on Salt Spring Island decided something had to be done about entertaining members. "Meetings are all right and necessary," said secretary Mrs. Elsie Thacker, "but sometimes it is nice to get together and relax."

The officials talked it over and then started an open house which they hope will become a monthly feature.

The first party was held at St. George's church hall, Ganges, with 37 members present. They played cards and had refreshments.

A door prize was won by Mrs. Florence Kitchener, a Pioneer Village resident. The local bus from Bill's Taxi was chartered to bring some members in from the south end.

Medal Winners

The Echo Centre Aquatic Club of Port Alberni came eighth in the Evergreen League championships at Seattle.

The boys' relay team in the 11 and 12-year-old group won a silver medal in the free style and a bronze in the medley. Several individual swimmers brought home bronze medals, and fourth and fifth place ribbons.

Head coach Bill Bennett said he is hopeful that before the end of the season, as many as a dozen youngsters will qualify for the Canadian national swimming championships in July, 1969.

Poison Control

Hospital administration, medical and nursing staff at St. Joseph's hospital, Comox, have re-established a poison control centre as part of the emergency services of the hospital.

The centre consists of a

Douglas Gives 12-Year Warning

Foreign Cash Rapped

NANAIMO — Canada would reach the point of no return with foreign financial control in 12 years, said NDP Leader T. C. Douglas when he spoke to Nanaimo Junior Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Mr. Douglas, a candidate in the coming Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands byelection, said the only hope is President-Elect Richard Nixon.

He said Mr. Nixon is presumably part of the Republican party's protectionist wing which might institute higher tariffs. On the other hand, added Mr. Douglas, the same policy could mean even more American interference in Canadian business policies.

He said he was one of the first to realize that foreign capital was eroding Canadian sovereignty.

When he made an issue of it, no one paid attention, said Mr. Douglas, but his contemporaries, notably Walter Gordon, managed to bring it to public attention.

He said the Watkins Report, published in February, finally stressed the fact.

He said the report predicts that in about 12 years 80 per cent of the Canadian economy will be foreign-controlled.

This is the point of no return because the profits automatically buy up remaining control without any more foreign investments, said Mr. Douglas.

He said foreign control there is 67 per cent foreign control, he pointed out. "There is no other country in the world, where so large a part of the economy is owned outside its borders."

He said that foreign control has already killed automobile and truck exports sales because U.S. companies don't want competition from Canadian subsidiaries.

Similarly, three American-owned mills refused to mill wheat to fill a contract with Russia because Americans feared some would find its way to Cuba.

"In spite of what the prime minister tried to do, these companies refused to mill the wheat."

He said the problem is that United States did not recognize foreign sovereignty over subsidiary companies and would prosecute parent company officials for violating the trade with the Enemy Act.

Mr. Douglas said that during the recent gold crisis, President Johnson requested subsidiaries send all undistributed profits "home."

This made a crisis for Canada, said Mr. Douglas.

He said it was dangerous, when a Canadian minister had to contact a foreign minister to avert disaster. The American minister then declared Canadian-based subsidiaries needed only to remit 37 per cent.

He said foreign-owned companies should have to declare what percentage is owned outside of Canada. A percentage of their equities should be placed mandatorily on Canadian markets.

He said another solution would be to set up a Canadian development corporation, using pension and insurance funds as European countries do.

He said the corporation would make loans to Canadian businesses for expansion. Loans would go to new companies to process raw materials, instead of exporting raw materials, to give Canada a controlling interest in Canadian subsidiaries.

Accused Man Testifies
In Trial at Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A Port Alice man, accused of raping a 24-year-old woman Aug. 15 gave evidence in a Nanaimo county fall assizes trial Thursday.

Eric Sheridan Page, 21, supported previous testimony given by police who read notes of interviews immediately after his arrest.

Questioned by crown counsel, David Williams, Page said that he went to the woman's house and stayed after her husband went to work.

'LOST CONTROL'

"I kissed her and she seemed responsive. I guess my hands began to roam at that time. She said 'No, don't,' he admitted telling them.

Asked why he did not stop, he said that women before had said the same thing, "but didn't really mean it."

"I sort of lost control of myself I guess, and I had intercourse with her," he admitted.

Asked by police if he had raped her, he answered: "I guess more or less."

Mr. Williams asked: "In spite of her protests you were determined to do it, weren't you?"

Mr. Williams asked the question several times. After the third time defence counsel Eric Brown objected because the question had been asked more than once and an answer had been given each time.

Mr. Justice David Verchere said the question demanded a declaratory answer which had not been given.

Mr. Williams asked the same question several more times before receiving a negative answer.

The trial, which began Wednesday, is continuing.

Student

Opposed

CUMBERLAND — Increasing opposition over a possibility that Courtenay School Board may move junior secondary students to Courtenay is being voiced in Cumberland.

Any decision by trustees to move students will be opposed by Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, it was stated at a meeting Thursday.

Aldermen explained the background of the Cumberland schools controversy.

Trustees had assured council that any decision made would be given to aldermen.

It had been suggested that public opinion should be obtained either through a vote or at a public meeting.

Council has asked the board about a rumor that the junior secondary school is to be phased out.

SERVICE CLUBS

The chamber approved a resolution stating its opposition to transferring the children. If a decision has been made by the board, the chamber will call a public meeting at which trustees would be asked to answer questions.

The resolution also states that the chamber will contact local service clubs to outline the situation.

The clubs would be asked for their support by expressing disapproval of a school change.

The chamber will also write to Education Minister Donald Brocks, with copies to Municipal Affairs Ministers Dan Campbell, M.L.A. for the riding, and the school board, expressing its objections.

Cowichan Valley Boom

Riding School Busy

DUNCAN — The horse training business in the Cowichan Valley is really booming.

Dr. Charles Ennals, director of Pine Paddocks, leaves the managing to Pat and Dave Bowron who said "business has been going great guns since we officially opened Sept. 28."

"More and more people seem to be turning to horse riding and showing, especially because of the indoor facilities which allow riding at night and during the miserable weather."

"There is a big potential for show horses, especially hunters and jumpers in the district."

Mr. and Mrs. Bowron have worked with horses almost all their lives. Besides teaching people how to ride, the Bowrons board, train and break horses as hunters, jumpers, hacks and to qualify in equitation (junior horses) and dressage.

Mrs. Bowron said "when a green horse is brought to us to train we teach the horse the basics first and if the master is inexperienced, him next."

This week they signed on 60 students from local private schools who plan to work horseback riding into the school curriculum.

The students will be taught the basics of horseback riding such as getting on and off, walking, trotting and cantering.

Mrs. Bowron said "Kids seem to come along quicker than older people because they have less fear."

"Most adults are very nervous but the kids will try anything."

Smiling Portrait Often Conceals Growing Ills

The four of them make up the type of family you might expect to see on a poster depicting a happy Christmas. The parents appear reasonably handsome and healthy. They are in their late 30s.

The children are four and two years of age and could very easily win you over with their ways.

However, you can forget the poster. And as far as the young father is concerned, you can forget the happy Christmas.

Social workers say the father has an emotional problem. He can't seem to cope with many of life's demands. Over the past few years he has found it increasingly difficult to hold a job. As a result, the debts continue to pile up.

"It has reached the point where something like Christmas becomes an insurmountable obstacle to this man," a social worker said.

This, then is a family with hidden scars for whom Christmas holds little hope. There are many more of them.

For many the word Christmas brings bitter thoughts. But where the children are concerned there is nearly always hope. And when that hope is not fulfilled there is disappointment. For children do not always understand.

Christmas Day can be made just a little bit more enjoyable for some of these unfortunate people by the Colonist 500 Fund.

By Friday contributions totalled $2,512 — still far short of last year's record total of more than $17,000.

The money is distributed to 500 Greater Victoria families selected by the Christmas Bureau.

Accused Carries Day

CHICAGO (Reuters)—Eddie Louis, accused of trespassing, took a dive into the cold, filthy waters of the Chicago River Friday instead of appearing in court. He emerged a hero.

The 22-year-old window cleaner was on his way to court when he spotted Hilario Santiago, 31, in the river. Shedding his shoes and jacket, Louis plunged in and held up the drowning man until a fire department rescue squad arrived.

Louis eventually got to court in borrowed clothing to hear Judge Maurice Lee say: "We need more people like you."

Louis, arrested after leaving the property of a car company where a theft occurred two weeks ago, was promptly granted an adjournment of his case until Jan. 15.

Montreal Bomb Danger

Shoppers Shooed to Safety

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of shoppers, estimated at more than 4,000, were evacuated from the downtown T. Eaton Co. department store just before supper hour Friday night following telephone bomb threats.

Police said four sticks of dynamite were found in the main floor jewelry department, and the search was being enlarged to include any suspicious packages in the store.

The downtown store was closed Friday night but was to open again today. Eaton's suburban stores in Pointe Claire and Ville d'Ajou and a warehouse store stayed open Friday night.

Early in the day a bomb exploded in a basement locker provided for shoppers in the same store. It caused about $2,000 in damages and injured two cleaning workers.

Store executives decided to evacuate shoppers and allow police to make a thorough check of the premises in response to

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Strand, acting president of Simon Fraser University, Friday refused to negotiate a settlement with militant students who have occupied SFU's administration building since Wednesday night.

Dr. Strand told a rally of about 2,000 students in the SFU mall that an impasse exists between the administration and a group of about 150 students, for the most part members of the radical Students for a Democratic University.

He said the group wants to negotiate with the university on four demands: reform of admissions practices, interchange of credits among universities, opening of administration files to students and more money for higher education.

NOT NEGOTIABLE

"This is not negotiable," Dr. Strand told the students.

The situation remained stale-mated Friday afternoon. The students vowed they would retain possession of the administration building until their demands are met.

Later in the day, activist leaders held a rally of their own, attended by about 300 students. They issued a statement saying they're ready and willing to bargain at any time with the administration or senate on the four demands.

SEVERAL HOURS

Dr. Strand spent the night and several hours early Friday morning negotiating with the students in the building.

He said he felt nothing was accomplished, but both sides emerged with a better understanding of each other's positions.

"I consider the issue of admissions very important," said the acting president. "I consider the occupation of the building an illegitimate means."

NO ACTION

In Victoria, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the provincial government does not plan to take any action against the students inside the building at this time.

"The matter is being handled by the university itself for the moment," said Mr. Peterson. So far, there has been no suggestion that police might be used to clear the administration building.

Quebec Liquor To Flow

MONTREAL (CP)—Raymond Parent, chief negotiator for 3,000 Quebec Liquor Board employees on strike since June 26, said Friday night liquor stores in the province may open "some time Monday morning."

Parent, general secretary of the Confederation of National Trade Unions who bargains on behalf of the liquor board employees, said the end of the strike could come Sunday when workers will be asked to ratify proposed wage agreements giving store employees an average of $83 weekly and warehouse workers an average $80 weekly.

Prior to the strike, store employees earned an average of $83 weekly and warehouse workers earned an average $80 weekly.

Under this agreement, the original government offer of a 15-per-cent increase would become more like 26 or 27 per cent," Parent said.
